The race is on: Laiolo, Grace vie for mayor

By NANCY HILLS

THE FILING deadline has passed and the race is on: the campaign for Carmel mayor will pit the current mayor against a member of the council.

Mayor Jean Grace and Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo are the only two in the fray, since Tim Grady, a perennial mayoral candidate, failed to garner the necessary signatures to qualify as a candidate. Grady collected only 19 of the 20 qualified signatures required in a Carmel election to run for office.

Grace said she views the election more as a difference in approach to the role of government and philosophy about planning for the future.

'My feeling is this town has a history that it should continue to look at more than quantitative issues. We need to look at things in more than how much they cost.'
— Jean Grace

"I think the campaign issues will probably focus on the broad scale versus small scale detail planning, long-range planning rather than getting caught up in the minute. I prefer the long-range approach," Grace said. "The issues raised will be the numbers, statistics, how much things cost.

"My feeling is this town has a history that it should continue to look at more than quantitative issues. We need to look at things in more than how much they cost. I think it is hard to quantify things. We do keep a balanced budget — thank God, we keep a balanced budget — but the quality of life is also important."

'A lot of people have asked me to run, so I am responding to that request. I thought I would do a good job as mayor and as the representative of the city.'
— Elinor Laiolo

Laiolo was elected to the council in 1986, along with Clint Eastwood for mayor and Bob Fischer for councilman. To run for mayor she gives up a second try for a four-year term on the city council. The mayor's office is a two-year term.

"I would like to let the community know I care about the city and what's happening and the direction it is taking," Laiolo said. "During the past four years, and past two years, we've worked hard on finishing the R-1 and R-4 plans and I would like to see those go forward."

"A lot of people have asked me to run, so I am responding to that request," she added. "I thought I would do a good job as mayor and as the representative of the city."

Laiolo said that there will probably be a "drop in revenue this year" and the council will have to look for places to cut back.

"I don't have any ideas in particular where the cuts should come from. We have to see what the needs of the various departments are," she said.

JEAN GRACE will run for another two-year term as Carmel's mayor.

ELINOR LAIOLO is giving up her council seat to seek the mayor's job.

Laiolo added that Grace has never told her her philosophy of planning so she could not respond to comments about their differences in that area.

"I must say I'm aware the city is not an island, that we are a part of a larger region and what's going on in the area is important to Carmel," Laiolo said.

Grace and Laiolo have had clearly different viewpoints on many of the issues in the past.

Grace was head of the beach walkway and restoration committee, while Laiolo opposed much of the project, particularly accepting the $200,000 grant from the Coastal Conservancy to help fund the pathway.

"I believe we gave up too much local control to get that money," Laiolo said. "The plans had to be approved by the Coastal Conservancy."

Laiolo said she was also concerned that the engineering studies had not been followed

Another blow delivered to Hatton Canyon Freeway

By DAVID LELAND

IT'S TOO early to take bets, but it appears that public sentiment and new transportation legislation may be winning out for those favoring widening Highway 1 over a new freeway.

The latest blow to Caltrans' plans for the Hatton Canyon Freeway project came during the Feb. 7 Monterey County Transportation Commission meeting, when commissioners were told funding for the project may be in jeopardy.

Transportation and reform legislation of 1989 requires accountability to the state Transportation Commission if a project's costs exceed 120 percent of the 1988 cost estimate.

In 1988 it was estimated that the project would cost $23.77 million, new figures show the price tag at $33.42 million.

The 120-percent figure comes into play when considering the state's liability, not the federal government's share.

About $3.5 million of the cost escalation is due to inflationary costs, while about $6.5 million can be attributed to structural changes in the proposed freeway, according to Dave Murray, transporation planner.

Changes include realignment of the road in the lower canyon and Carpenter Street, bridge aesthetics, right-of-way costs and the requirement for a new bridge at the Carmel River.

The county transporation commission has until June 1 to draft a resolution saying that the Hatton Canyon Freeway project is the "most cost-effective of all projects in the county."

That designation is causing some government officials to balk.

'It will not do it. Traffic will grow and you will eventually get back to where you are right now — widening will only be a short-term solution.'
— Dave Murray
— Transportation planner

Indeed, the commission postponed a public hearing on the matter until 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, March 7, at the Community Center in Salinas, after receiving a written request from Mayor Jean Grace.

At its Feb. 6 gathering the Carmel City Council unanimously asked for a month to study the matter.

"I talked to Jean Grace and she said there could be an alternate solution," said county

National health care

Dear Editor:

There was a time when this subject was a NO NO! It ws socialistic and abhorrent to the disciples of free enterprise. But it is a subject that needs to be thought about today.

There are countless millions in this country not covered by any health insurance. We are told that more than 50 percent of the people in California are not covered. These peope become wards of the state and ultimately the taxpayer pays their bill.

Hospital costs have skyrocketed, maybe because they have to provide free services to so many. Many hospitals are closing; they can't afford to keep open. We are told that 40 percent of California's hospitals may not be operating in coming years.

Employers are today reneging on health plans for employees, because costs are escalating so rapidly.

The Medicare Catastrophic Plan is truly that. It is catastrophic for the senior citizens who have to pay for it. It's an unfair plan and places a heavy burden on the already overtaxed senior citizen.

Canada, the UK, and many other countries have a National Health Plan. Every citizen pays into the plan with a fixed percent of their income, and everybody is covered. And their health costs are much less than ours.

Isn't it about time to ask our elected representatives to get this going in Washington? There is bound to be opposition to this from the private sector, but their arguments can't be very reasonable. Why not give it a try?

Letter from Czechoslovakia

Dear Editor:

In preparation for a planned trip to Czechoslovakia in April with my two sons, I've been in communications with old friends there. The purpose of our trip is to bring up to date some of the many articles my husband Milton Mayer wrote on conditions in that beleaguered country. He had a long love affair with the Good Soldier Schweik's native land and we made many visits on assignment for Harper's, the Christian Century, and the Progressive.

I find my friend's letter so touching that I would like to share it with you and Pine Cone readers. Somehow her use of English adds to the poignancy of her report.

Praha, Jan. 8, 1990

Dear Jane:

I am ashamed to receive your letter before I was able to write mine. I knew friends are waiting for news from Prague, but we have been in a process of revolutionary changes and I was waiting what will come next and what will come next. One of the biggest next was the new government and the election of our president. And still this just a beginning. So I waited and waited and our friends have wait too. Now I started already to write.

Your letter came just on the 5th of January and is dated December 12th. It took a long time. But around Christmas we four free days and around New Year three free days. Before Christmas and between Christmas and New year there is extremely much mail. This is how I explain the long trip of your letter.

I understand it was exciting to hear and see the news from Praha. I remember how we walked through the evening Prague in 1968 when the student were on strike, I would not believe that we shall experience once more something similar. I was so afraid that when changes come, I was absolutely sure they must come, there will be much revenge or even lynching.

I heard about the demonstration and police action on Nov. 17 in Harare Zimbabwe. I was very afraid in what state I shall find home.

I arrived on Nov. 20 in the evening when students were striking, artists were striking and every day for 10 days we were demonstrating. The mood in Prague is indescribable. To be among the crowds of thousands and thousands of people and these people were disciplined and nice to each other and non-violent. And they had never enough singing of our national anthem. And the slogans and the jokes and cartoons concerning the unfamous party leaders were also nice and humane, not cruel at all.

For me one of the great miracles was to see a patch of roses in the middle of Wenceslass square where thousand of people were demonstrating and the roses were not damaged at all. Usually our people are not so careful. And all the organization was done by the students, like in 1968. Just to see a tiny girl telling the crowds of people not to go to certain street since the square is already full and to go different way and most of the people obeyed. Something absolutely unusual.

Only later we learned that the situation was tremendously dangerous. On Nov. 27th there was a vote in the Central Committee of Communist Party whether the army be used against the demonstrating people. Majority of two votes decided not to use the army. Also the militia was prepared and also sent from various parts of the country to Prague.

Fortunately there were everywhere reasonable people. I often thought from where the non-violence. There are various reasons. Also we did not know and could not know what is happening under the surface of the society. But we shall have time to talk about all this when you come.

It is wonderful idea about coming to Prague. I always hoped you will come. I shall do all in my power to help with anything. Of course, some of your old friends passed away. But the atmosphere is open, and you will surely find enough people to interview. Maybe even your Embassy might help you. You know who is the Ambassador — it is the famous film star of my youth Shirley Temple.

Freeway solution

Dear Editor:

The Sunset Center forum with presentations by Caltrans, who wants to build a highway through Hatton Canyon, and proponents of widening Highway 1 proved to be enlightening. Casting aside the usual hyperbole, these appear to be the main issues.

First, both alternatives will do what they are supposed to do: relieve traffic congestion. However, there the agreement ends. While widening Highway 1 may suffice for several years, eventually it will be inadequate requiring an additional modification at ever increasing cost through inflationary pressures. Therefore, this is rightly termed the Band-Aid approach and is not a myth as one of the speakers claimed.

Second, both alternatives will cause environmental damage. Caltrans acknowledges that the Hatton Canyon Freeway will cause the greatest amount of damage, but has an on-going program to mitigate loss of trees and wetlands. Unfortunately, the best environmental alternative might be to do nothing at all, but only a few seem to advocate this unrealistic solution.

Third, is the issue of development. This may be the crux of the problem as it appears the proponents of widening Highway 1 argue that the Hatton Canyon Freeway will cause increased development. While it may be true that development depends on adequate roads, this is not the way to exercise control. It should be done through the governmental planning process and enacted by our elected representatives. At one point, a member of the audience decried developers coming here from Dallas, etc. in order to develop our local land resources. Perhaps we should keep in mind that this is the way our capitalistic system functions so efficiently.

Capital (local or not), is allowed to move freely and seek its best use which is exactly what the Eastern European Bloc nations are so striving to emulate along with the democracy that makes it possible. Such control as desired is then exercised by government through elected representatives. If we, as residents, do not want more development then lets elect those people who best reflect this ideal.

In summary, I believe the Hatton Canyon Freeway offers the best long-term solution. If there are ways of modifying the design that offers both esthetic and functional improvements that would be fine. I certainly cannot agree with Band-Aid approaches offering temporary solutions and requiring increasing amounts of costly resources. Finally, let's not get into another problem like our water problem where our 10-year failure to act on a new dam (which will be environmentally degrading, but mitigated), has led to the current water situation.

A tough job

Dear Editor:

Thank you to Val of animal control in Carmel for all her good work with our four-legged friends in this area. She does her job daily with swiftness, caring, and conscientiousness.

Her job is not easy. So many people leave their animals in their car without much air, let them run loose with no collars, leave them running loose in the back of trucks, or throw things out into the ocean for their dogs to retrieve. Often the currents pull the dogs too far out into the ocean.

Some people even throw their animals off the cliff, like the little dog that was found on the beach. Many years ago one was left on a cliff for 24 hours in the rain. It was hard to retrieve their pet due to the mud on the cliff.

No, Val's job is a tough one and I think she deserves a lot of credit and a pat on the back from the community.

Stalemate hampers progress on Murphy plan

By DAVID LELAND

AS A result of a price tag of $180,000 attached to a county-mandated erosion control plan, a stalemate has been reached at Little Horse Ranch.

Located in the hills above Garrapata Canyon on the south side of Carmel Valley, the property is owned by Phoenix-based attorney John Murphy, who was accused more than a year ago by the district attorney's office of illegally grading roads on his 4,000-plus-acre spread.

Last year Dale Ellis, county zoning administrator, ordered extensive erosion control program, which far exceeded any plans brought forth by Murphy.

Murphy appealed the county's plan to Superior Court Judge John Phillips, who ruled that Murphy could not do any work unless it was contained in Ellis' plan.

In December Murphy began erosion control on his property consisting of water bars, repair of berm drains and mulching.

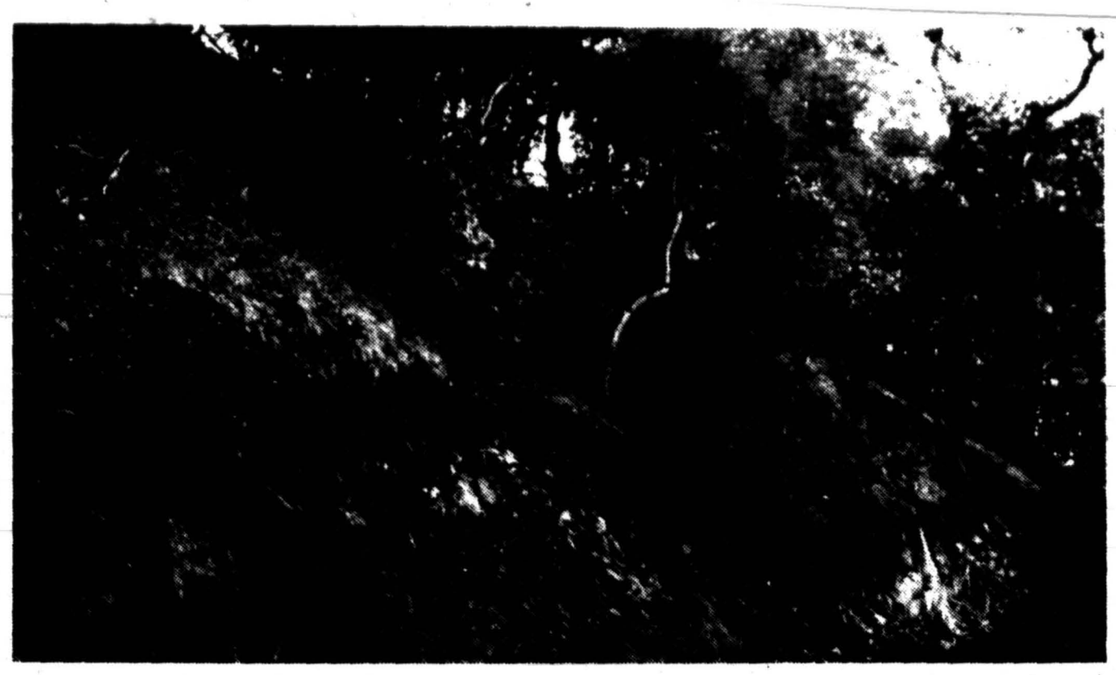
The county halted that effort Dec. 22 and issued Murphy a stop-work order.

'Isolated action taken without observance of all the conditions of the permit are inconsistent with the permit.'

— Dale Ellis
— Zoning director

"Isolated action taken without observance of all the conditions of the permit are inconsistent with the permit," Ellis said.

Ellis also accused Murphy of cutting down live trees during his erosion control measures.



CONDITIONS ON Little Horse Ranch, owned by John Murphy, have not improved since the county issued an erosion control plan last year. Roads, such as the one shown here, could fall into the streams below.

"We are trying to get specifics; we are not aware that any live trees have been cut down," said Susan Dauphine, one of Murphy's attorneys. "The work (erosion control) has been stopped as far as I know."

Almost two months and several rainy days later, the property is still without erosion control measures.

For $180,000, the roads Murphy was accused of grading could be removed, the land stabilized so silt would not cascade into creeks and an expert erosion control specialist could be hired to oversee the work, according to J.R. Ramos, deputy county counsel.

Last fall, before Phillips' order, the state Department of Fish and Game verged on funding the project in its entirety, but is now "reassessing" the damages, according to Ann Malcolm, deputy legal advisor.

"That was assuming that the defendant (Murphy) would return the money within the fiscal year (ending June 30)," said Malcolm, referring to the pre-order status. "From that point we began conducting a resource evaluation."

Local Fish and Game representatives are preparing a report for her office, Malcolm said.

Money for the work would come from The Fish and Wildlife Pollution Clean Up and Abatement Account. Established in 1985, the fund is composed of fines levied on polluters and currently has a balance of $600,000, Malcolm said.

Because Fish and Game will not fund the project unless Murphy will agree to repay the money before the end of June, Malcolm did not hold high hopes for her department's involvement.

"I would say it's iffy," she said.

BUT RAMOS said that there is more to the task of providing erosion control for Little Horse Ranch than meets the eye.

"He wants to keep and improve the newly graded roads," he said, adding that he believes Murphy will fight any effort that would elimimate the roads.

Ramos disagrees with observers who claim that the county has Murphy cornered and should secure the money from other sources — even the county's general fund.

"The county is not dragging its feet," said Ramos, adding that his office, the DA and Attorney General's Office are currently preparing further legal action against Murphy.

While Ramos said that coming up with the necessary funding does not come under his purview, there is case law supporting the county simply going onto the land and performing the work if funding can be located.

'We are trying to get specifics; we are not aware that any live trees have been cut down. The work (erosion control) has been stopped as far as I know.'

— Susan Dauphine
— Murphy attorney

"There's a good argument that the county can abate the nuisance on its own," he said. "But things haven't jelled yet to the point where we are sure that that is the key."

Bruce Buel has weathered many storms during his tenure

By NANCY HILLS

THE WATER has been rough at times, but after 11 years Bruce Buel is sailing on to other ports.

Buel, general manager of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, left the water district Feb. 7 to become the district manager of the McKinleyville Community Services District in Humbolt County where the sign reads, "Welcome to McKinleyville, where the horses have the right of way."

"It is a good place for my family," he said.

When Buel began his career with the Monterey Peninsula district April 2, 1979, he was the first and only staff member of the newly formed agency.

Since then, he has seen board members come and go, philosophies change, the advent of another drought and the community finally coming around to declaring it wants a dam for a water supply project.

"I picked this time because the election signaled a need for change in the community," he explained. "I have been with the district for 11 years and given it my best shot. I think maybe a fresh face will be good for the district and the community."

Despite criticism of the district, Buel believes many good things have come from the agency.

"I can understand that some people feel we had one purpose and that was to develop a water supply project and we haven't broken through that barrier. But I read the district's enabling legislation as calling for 'an integrated management of the water resource of the Monterey Peninsula.' I think the district has come a long way toward achieving that objective."

However, the failure at this point to complete a dam has angered the community and given the district a reputation as a "do-nothing" organization.

"We took too long to do what we had to do. I think a governmental body has a performance expectation and has got to provide a tangible result to justify its existence.

"I think the district has done tremendous good in terms of reclamation, conservation and erosion control with the irrigation of the riparian vegetation and river management. We have not fufilled the community's expectation in solving the water supply problem," he said.

A combination of events, personalities and divergent opinions have contributed to that situation, Buel said, including his own mistakes. If he had it to do over again, he would have taken a different tack.

"I would have listened more carefully to the state and federal agencies, though I don't think it would have changed things in regards to getting a permit for New San Clemente Dam," he said.

The district completed an environmental impact report/statement for the state and federal environmental agencies in late 1987. It had proposed a new dam at the existing San Clemente dam site on the Carmel River, the project it settled on in 1983. The report was roundly criticized by the agencies as being too one-sided for the San Clemente project. Since then, the district has switched its project to the Los Padres site, upstream from the first project. The EIR/EIS is due out in June.

"In 1983, the California Department of Fish and Game proposed a water supply strategy for the peninsula that challenged the New San Clemente Dam. The district was young and naive and we thought we had the discretion to build the water supply project we wanted.

"What Fish and Game said was try reclamation and conservation first, and if that was not enough, then we would talk about an off-channel reservoir. If I had listened carefully, and hadn't been so hung up on the importance of cost effectiveness, I would have proposed such a plan," Buel said. "I don't think the board or the community could have made a different choice — we still would have proposed a dam at San Clemente — but the regulatory agencies would have felt better about the district."

That approach would have changed the environmental impact reports on the project also, he added.

"It would have clarified the differences in the projects. We would have more fully compared what we thought we should have done," he added.

The other governmental agencies also had a hand in delaying the project.

"I think there is some game playing at the state and federal agencies in regards to growth control. There are individuals who are willing to sacrifice the fishery and environment to stop growth. The district has been stonewalled. The district has been delayed. I think there has been a effort to ensure the district didn't succeed in expanding the water supply.

"I know for a fact that prior to the vote (on the dam) in 1987, those agencies were convinced that the community didn't want a dam. They were shocked at the 64 percent vote in favor of the dam. They had been convinced that a majority of voters on the peninsula wanted to use water to control growth. Clearly, some members of the environmental community had convinced the agencies that the dam was going to lose," Buel said.

Additionally, Buel said, "there is a mindset that on-channel reservoirs are always bad. However, this particular river already has not one, but two on-channel reservoirs. The steelhead run is already blocked at Los Padres and an on-stream dam would certainly improve the river channel. But that flies in the face of conventional wisdom about on-stream reservoirs."

The varying viewpoints of previous district board of directors is another reason the district has had trouble getting a project completed, Buel said.

"If we had a different set of boards, maybe it would have been different," he said. "That is the frustrating part. The people elected those boards. The first five years the board couldn't agree on a project. We studied alternatives. Bill Gianelli resigned because he couldn't get four votes on a project. In 1983, they voted for San Clemente, but that didn't mean they agreed.

"I believe the district has moved as fast as the boards would let it move," he added.

Buel maintains that an on-channel reservoir such as the district's now proposed dam at the Los Padres site is the best solution for water storage on the peninsula.

An off-stream reservoir like the proposed Canada Reservoir will cost significantly more to build and operate. With Canada, water from the river will have to be pumped up into a canyon in the hills above the valley floor.

"It appears that Canada will cost between $70 million and $120 million to build and about $1.5 million a year to operate," he said. "Los Padres will cost about $600,000 a year to operate."

BRUCE BUEL left his position as Monterey Peninsula Water Management District General Manager Feb. 7 to take a new job in McKinleyville. Buel had been district manager for 11 years. (Chuck Scardina photo.)

Los Padres would cost about $61 million to build.

One of the reasons Canada has been touted as better than an on-stream channel, Buel said, is that the project would avoid the long federal permiting process that has the on-stream reservoirs held up. But Canada, he said, will probably have to go through the same process as the district's proposed projects.

"Canada would provide roughly the same benefits for planned growth and drought protection (as Los Padres), but dramatically and had some reservations about narrowing Scenic Road.

Grace explained that she got involved because, after the 1983 storms, "the integrity of Scenic Road and the bluffs were threatened."

"While working on that, we would say there should be something done about the walking on Scenic," she added.

Grace supported and Laiolo opposed the tree ordinance that established criteria and penalties for cutting down mature redwoods, oaks, cypress and pine trees on private property.

"I think the atmosphere of the village in a forest by the sea is part of the environmental network of the town. The proximity of the ocean, the rolling hills and the forest — without any one of the three we would not be the same," Grace said. "It was a compromise ordinance, from all trees to those four types and I was very glad to support it."

"I believe it gets into property rights," Laiolo countered. "Most people are going to remove trees from private property because one way or another, it affects safety. Most people moved to Carmel because they like trees. Some will cut them down, but I don't think it's wholesale."

Grace voted for the purchase of the Handley and Hodges properties, Laiolo voted against their purchase.

On Handley, Laiolo said she opposed the purchase because the city did not need to buy the entire property to accomplish what the public wanted — fewer apartments or condominiums and retention of the view of Point Lobos.

The Hodges, she said, was "too much to pay for a piece of floodplain."

For Grace, the opportunity to acquire a piece of open space was important in the long run. "Sometimes you just have to go for it, like the Hodges property," she said.

Handley was something the community wanted, as evidenced by the overwhelming vote in favor during Clint Eastwood's postcard survey, Grace said. Also, before the question of the city buying the property even came up, Grace said she would walk by it and often think what a wonderful view it had and hope that it could somehow be preserved.

Water has been another point of contention between the two. Grace voted to ask the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board to consider a limitation of water meter hookups. Laiolo voted against that request.

"I think we've got to face the realities of the water situation," Grace said. "I don't think we should suck this place dry. If anything, it will kill the goose that laid the golden egg. I think we should live with what we have and whatever happens, we need to work toward getting more water storage."

Laiolo views the moratorium or limits as a case of the water district getting into land use planning.

"That's the responsibility of the city rather than the water district. I think the water district should say there is not enough to go around then it is up to the cities to limit projects," she said. "Furthermore, figures from (California-American Water Co.) show we are not using as much water as in the past. I don't think I have heard an explanation of an emergency. We have to know what is being described as an emergency. We also have a new resource added when Ed Haber gave up 400 acre feet he used on his golf course."

Both agree that the issues of the campaign will take shape as the April 10 election draws near.

Until then, they will continue to face each other during city council meetings, where, in the past, they have often tangled over procedures as well as personal viewpoints.

Supervisor seeking applicants for CSA 39 committee

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is inviting applications from interested constituents for a three-year appointment to the Monterey County Service area No. 39 Advisory Committee.

The committee meets at least twice each calendar year and advises the board of supervisors in all matters of fire protection in its area.

CSA No. 39 consists of the unincorporated areas of Aguajito, Del Monte Fairways and Josselyn Canyon and applicants are required to be residents of the area.

Interested residents of the area should send a letter stating their desire to serve, including their home address and daytime phone number, to the office of Strasser Kauffman at 1200 Aguajito Road, Suite 006, Monterey, CA 93940.

Bruce Buel has weathered storms less for the fishery and the environment. In other words, you have to spend more to get less. In a perfect world of rational decision making, they would never, never build Canada if there was an opportunity to build a new Los Padres. But we don't live in a perfect world," he said.

One reason that the community may have to go with Canada, Buel said, is the wilderness land swap necessary to get permits for Los Padres may not take place.

The new Los Padres Dam would inundate about four or five acres of the Ventana Wilderness, which would be against federal law. To avoid that, the district has proposed, and Rep. Leon Panetta has supported, that the district purchase about 50 acres adjoining the wilderness and swap that land for the land that will be flooded by the dam. Because it is a federal wilderness area, the House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate must approved the land exchange.

The House of Representatives has approved the bill but the Senate still needs to consider one.

"The next question is what (Sen. Alan) Cranston will do, whether he will support the concept in his bill or not. Cranston wants to be very careful of his standing with the environmental community right now," Buel said.

He added that representatives of the Sierra Club have toured the sites and are discussing their stance on the issue.

"I believe we can get a permit for Los Padres if we can effect the wilderness swap," Buel said.

Other areas of conflict for the district have been the allocation program, which divides the use of the total amount of water available among the city's and Monterey County. It is a different program than rationing, and deals with the amount of water during a normal year.

The city of Carmel sued the district over the allocation system in 1987 when water use in Carmel reached its allotment and was threatened with a water meter moratorium. The district is completing an EIR on the allocation system, which in its draft form, stated that average consumption was resulting in environmental damage to the Carmel River environment.

"The allocation was a time bomb. Some time or another one of the jurisdictions would exceed its allotment (as Carmel did), and the whole thing would be challenged. It just so happens Carmel was it," Buel said.

"Potential dynamics would have ultimately required an environmental impact report. Because of this drought, it has become very apparent (with the) drought that our consumption is greater than our ability to produce and current consumption is creating environmental impacts. A recognition of those concerns was a matter of time and the environmental community would have demanded an EIR eventually."

The last board, chaired by Nick Lombardo, was plagued with accusations of special interest and water rights conflicts. Lombardo was one of the water rights petitioners.

But political back door dealing during Lombardo's board was "no more and no less than it is now or before Nick," Buel said.

"Each board has its perception of the community's mandate and each board will try to exercise its powers primarily to fulfill that mandate," he added. "Nick Lombardo's sin was that he was out of phase with the majority of the electorate. He was pro-business and wasn't afraid of stating it forcefully. He was elected in 1985 because people wanted to expand the water supply and he appeared to be the strongest candidate in wanting to build new dam. He certainly put his heart and soul into pushing San Clemente."

All the controversy has been hard on the staff, which Buel feels has been unfairly criticized.

"It's been tough, real tough. We have an incredibly talented, dedicated group of people that have a hell of a lot more horsepower than any other water planning agency that I know of," he said emphatically. "I think the grand jury report unfairly criticizes the technical staff for failures that were in reality political or regulatory in nature. I think it is a wonderful staff. I hope for the sake of the community they can stay together and not be totally demoralized by the context of the decision making process."

In the future, Buel said he believes the Monterey County Board of Supervisors will be carefully watching what the district does. But the district should stay intact.

"I think the community needs a body that is accountable to this electorate and for the resources here. We don't need to solve Salinas' problems. We just need to solve the ones here," he said.

Seniors program needs participants

IN SEPTEMBER 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

RE-ELECT MAYOR JEAN GRACE

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA APRIL 10, 1990

AN OPEN LETTER FROM MAYOR JEAN GRACE

Dear Citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea:
I have been honored to serve as Mayor of our cherished city for the past two years during which we have accomplished many positive things. I am especially proud of the following:

- Completion of Senior Housing and new parking at Fifth Street & Dolores (in partnership with the Carmel Foundation)
- Completion of Carmel Beach Bluffs Walkway
- Purchase of Torres Street property (Handley) for open space, mini-parks and new parking.
- Ordinance prohibiting short-term rentals in the residential area
- Resolution to preserve Mission Trail Park and proceed with rehabilitation of Flanders Mansion
- Completion of Park Branch of Carmel Library
- Ordinance to restrict cutting down of mature trees
- Opposition to CALTRANS design for a Hatton Canyon Freeway
- A dependable recycling program
- Support for restrictions on new water connections to protect supply for residents and local business
- Purchase of Hodges Property for greenbelt & recreation

Many of our problems do not lend themselves to easy solutions; we must listen to each other, debate with civility, think through alternatives, and then have the courage to make difficult decisions.

I would be honored to continue serving as your Mayor. My goals are to effectively manage growth, to preserve our quiet residential neighborhoods and to maintain the beauty of our forested village by the sea. Please vote your support on April 10th.

Thank you,
Jean Grace

Hatton Canyon Freeway dealt yet another blow

Commissioner Morris Fisher. "Possibly the widening of the existing highway."

Widening the freeway to four lanes with an interchange at Carmel Valley Road would cost about $7 million, according to Murray.

The concept of widening has been a popular one for those opposing the dramatic environmental consequences related to paving a road through Hatton Canyon.

Earlier this month public sentinment clearly supported widening during a public forum sponsored by the City of Carmel.

Such a response echos that of an informal poll taken by The Carmel Pine Cone slightly over a year ago, where widening was also favored over a freeway through the canyon.

FOR NEXT month's meeting, Barbara Shipnuck, commission chairperson, asked Caltrans' representatives to prepare accurate figures for widening as well as the Hatton Canyon alternative.

Widening is included in the final environmental impact statement, so if that option were chosen no further studies would be needed.

The final EIS has been delayed until April because of "procedural problems," Murray said.

The document was slated for a December release by the Federal Highway Administration, but the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and state Fish and Game Department have not completed their studies, Murray said.

"I'm beginning to think this is going to be some kind of record," said Murray, adding that the final EIS was first due for public scrutiny about three years ago.

Murray was firm in his belief that widening the freeway will not provide a solution for the peninsula's traffic woes.

"It will not do it," he said. "Traffic will grow and you will eventually get back to where you are right now — widening will only be a short-term solution."

But politicians are being forced to recognize the tide of public feeling turning against Caltrans' plans.

But even if the transportation commission reverses itself and endorses widening, funding would not necessecarily be guaranteed, according to Jerry Laumer, Caltrans deputy district director.

"The project would be deleted (from the state's transportation funding agenda)," Laumer said. "Then we would be back to square one."

The funds slated for the Hatton Canyon Freeway would be redistributed to other state road projects lined up in the wings.

"We cannot guarantee that the money would automatically be transferred (for widening)," he said.

Shipnuck said she will contact state transportation commissioners before next month in an effort to see if widening could be guaranteed funding.

She reasoned that since the project would cost less money than the previous plan, there would still be additional funds to be passed around.

'I talked to Jean Grace and she said there could be an alternate solution. Possibly the widening of the existing highway.'

Carmel area residents favor widening over freeway plan

WHILE SOME Carmelites chose to stay in on a drizzly Thursday evening, a large group of citizens gathered at the Sunset Center Auditorium to attend a public forum hosted by the city to discuss alternatives to the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

Carmel Mayor Jean Grace introduced Noel Mapstead, Scott Hennessy and Steve Brooks, all of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club, and Dave Murray and Gregg Albright, representatives from the California Department of Transportation.

Assemblyman Sam Farr was first in sharing his comments and concerns with the audience. He said there is a need for congestion relief and a management plan to provide better transportation. He endorsed the June gas tax measure because it could provide money for railway service from Monterey to San Francisco, which could ease congestion on the peninsula.

Displayed behind the panel of speakers were three alternative Caltrans designs showing the proposed widening of Highway 1 — to three, four or six lanes. Throughout the evening alternate 4 (widening Highway 1 to four lanes with an interchange at Carmel Valley Road), appeared to be the most popular choice, gaining strong support from the audience.

Murray, a Caltrans planner, presented several charts comparing the widening alternatives and the Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal in relation to capacity of the road now and in future years.

"Any project we do will negatively affect the scenic value," said Caltrans' Albright, referring to the necessity of retaining walls, widening of pavement, and removal of trees, all of which would alter the visual beauty of the area.

Alternate 3 would remove 100 trees from Carmel Valley Road to Ocean Avenue, while Alternate 4 would disturb 150 trees and alternate 6 would destroy 300 trees. More than 9,000 mature trees and 4,000 seedlings would be sacrificed by the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway. In addition, the 12½ acres of riparian wetland/woodlands and 160 acres of wildlife habitat would be destroyed.

Because of such environmental concerns, a group of Carmel High School students compiled a 70-page environmental report on Hatton Canyon and presented it to Caltrans representatives. Chris Hartzell, a Carmel High student, protested the freeway, saying, "How is it going to be in my future? I don't want to live in a pit of concrete!"

Albright suggested taking a walking tour through Hatton Canyon with the Carmel High students and Noel Mapstead so these matters could be further discussed.

"IN PROTECTING the environment, the Sierra Club accepts the additional responsibility to find compromise solutions when social demands conflict with environmental preservation," said Steve Brooks, co-chairman of the Transportation Committee. "We believe that widening the highway to four lanes with an interchange at Carmel Valley Road with interchanges at Rio Road and Carpenter Street if necessary and improvements at Ocean Avenue will significantly improve the highway capacity and reduce crossing and turning conflicts."

Brooks introduced Noel Mapsted, who he called the "Man of Hatton Canyon." Mapstead, a Carmel native and recently the focus of interviews in two metropolitan newspapers on his movement dedicated to blocking the freeway, is so committed to stopping the proposed freeway that his determination has taken him to Washington D.C., where he got federal officials to consider his viewpoint. While researching government records he discovered four government agencies that were skeptical about Caltrans' proposed freeway.

"Because of a lack of comprehensing widening Highway 1, much of the public and most of the politicians have not taken this alternative seriously," Mapstead said. "Several myths have developed and I would like to address seven of these myths."

(See related story in this issue.)

Mapstead then proceeded through each of the seven myths, debunking each with information he said he had garnered from his extensive research. For example, Mapstead claimed that Caltrans would only need an 8-foot easement from approximately four lots near Ocean Avenue and not have to run through the backyards of dozens of homes, a prime concern for many residents.

Mapstead's strong comments received several rounds of applause and cheers from the audience.

Hennessey, a biologist and member of the Sierra Club Ventana Chapter's Executive Committee, highlighted environmental concerns and compared the impacts of the freeway to the widening of Highway 1, while Brooks concluded with a diagram comparing the freeway and widening proposals.

Open microphones were then available for the audience to ask questions and make comments. The general theme of their comments appeared to object to the freeway and favor limiting growth in order to preserve the area.

Preservationists have until April to save Murphy house

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council Monday night struggled to find an answer to the demolition of the first M.J. Murphy house built in Carmel, while preservationist asked for more time to save the home and the owner's representative stated time and money had been lost while waiting for a resolution of the issue.

The council continued the item until its April meeting to give the those who want to save the house more time they had requested and to allow the owners to file plans for remodeling the rest of the property.

The small home is located behind the former Emile Norman Gallery on the westside of Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. It was built around 1902 and is in a delapidated condition.

When the April date comes around, the people who wnat to save the house need to have the money and plans all ready and not come asking for more time, Councilman James Wright said. He had the agreement of the other councilmembers.

Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo voted against the continuance. Laiolo stated that she felt the five months that the demolition was in the works at the planning commission level had held up the owner long enough and given the preservationist time to come up with a solution.

M.J. Murphy was one of Carmel's most noted builders, along with Hugh Comstock, and figured prominently in the establishment of Carmel's character.

The planning commission, associate planner Brian Roseth explained, had approved the demolition because it felt that there were better examples of Murphy's work in town and efforts should be aimed in that direction rather than because the building was his first.

Marjory Adams, speaking for those in favor of saving the house, told the commission that the first house carries the "signature" of the builder.

"It is a way of building that is no longer done," she said. "It is too bad to have had to lose it if there are ways of preserving it. We are just looking for time to do that."

They are looking to move the house to another property or at least dismantle it and keep it in storage.

Estimates of the cost of moving the property, according to Enid Sales, were about $6,500 and dismantling is about twice that price.

John Biason, son of the owner Stella Biason, told the council he had offered the house free to the group that wants to preserve it if they would move it. When they bought the property, there was nothing stated in the papers that it was of historical significance, he added, and the building inspector had declared that house unfit for habitation.

"We have endured financial hardship waiting for this appeal, we have been delayed," he said.

Biason said that if everything goes smoothly in the permit process, that they would be ready to break ground in early April.

Councilman Ken White, stating he lived in a Murphy home himself, said he could see the "signature" of Murphy's work in the little house.

"It is not as refined as cabinet work, but it is in the beginning stages in his construction," he said.

One of the biggest problems that the council faced is that there is not a law currently that outlines what can and cannot be done if a home is declared significant.

The general plan currently states that the owner can voluntarily declare the building significant. In other business, the council decided against allowing a contractor fined $23,000 for killing a large pine tree to pay part of the fine through paving a road in front of the house and other work.

Clayton Anderson, speaking for the Carmel Residents Association, told the council that it "would send a wrong message...if this money was used to improve the project by paving the street in front of the new house. Use of the fine money for this purpose appears to reward the perpetrator for the atrocity."

Other members of the audience agreed, some emotionally declaring the builder, Pat Shephard, should be even more severely punished for killing the tree.

Three to vie for two seats on city council

THE APPLICATION deadline has closed for two seats open on the Carmel City Council in the April 10 election.

The candidates are incumbent Bob Fischer, and challengers Carla Belgrano Ramsey and Barbara Brooks.

Each council seat is for a four-year term and carries with it the monthly salary of $100.

News notes:

Planners to review subordinate units

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will review the subordinate unit ordinance once again next week before sending its recommendations on to the council.

The ordinance establishs criteria for legalizing the existing second units in Carmel and a process for building new ones.

The commission will meet at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 14 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The council had approved changes to the ordinace which would allow both units to be rented and did not require new units to be rented to senior citizens.

The council also declared the new units do not have to be attached and existing units do not have to have been recently occupied.

According the draft ordinance, no unit should be could be enlarged to more than 400 square feet, can only be enlarged only if the site is larger than 6,000 square feet (including the main house), and must provide one off-street parking space for both residences and meet minimum health and safety codes.

Only one subordinante unit will be allowed per site and it cannot encroach on the private living spaces on adjoining properties.

To qualify as an existing unit, it must have "physically existed" before April 5, 1988.

Forum on hiring of cultural director set for Feb. 16

THE FRIENDS of Sunset Foundation is sponsoring a public forum on the hiring of a replacement for recently retired community and cultural director Richard Tyler.

The forum is scheduled for 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16 in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center.

The two hours will include a presentation by city administrator Doug Schmitz on the process, cultural programing suggestions, and questions and comments from the audience.

"We believe that filling the director's position is a vital first step twoards setting new priorities, moving Carmel-by-the-Sea's cultural activities in a new direction and enriching the cultural climate of the city," the Friends of Sunset Foundation announcement said.

CVPOA election results tallied

ONE NEW and two incumbent directors were elected to the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board of directors for two-year terms in January's mail balloting by the CVPOA's 1,274 members, according to Max Chaplin, president.

In addition, an all-incumbent slate of five officers were returned to office for one-year terms.

Newly elected director Fran Farina, financial planner/attorney, will replace R.T. Nimmons, who is retiring from the board after seven years of service, two of them as association president.

The two incumbent directors re-elected are Robert Greenwood, active in CVPOA water-management matters, and Vernon Juergens, genetic and agricultural development expert.

The three directors were chosen by the membership from a field of nine candidates.

Officers returned to lead the CVPOA in its 41st year of activity are Chaplin, president; Rod Mills, vice president; Jim Tritten, recording secretary; Feesie Heuer, corresponding secretary; and Ileene Crane-Franks, treasurer.

Officers and the new board will be installed at a membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15, at Hidden Valley Seminars in Carmel Valley.

Brian Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust, will be the main speaker, outlining plans for land trust acquisitions in the area.

Joyce Stevens named Carmel's Citizen of the Year

By NANCY HILLS

ARCHITECT JOYCE Stevens was honored as the second Carmel Citizen of the Year by the Carmel Residents Association Feb. 4.

CRA member and chairman of the selection committee Jim Holliday hailed Stevens as "unassuming but energetic, even ubiquitous participant in community causes for more than 20 years."

The announcment made at the CRA Citizen of the Year party at the Scout House in Carmel came as a surprise to Stevens. Just prior to the announcement, Holliday outlined her local accomplishments.

"Time and time again through these two decades this remarkably generous person has taken on responsibilities for a wide range of duties that have affected Carmel and its surrounding area: arranging delivery of food and the presence of friends for older, house-bound residents; developing and maintaining refuges for our native wildlife; helping to secure legislation that protects areas of natural beauty threatened by developers.

'I am just a small part of the overall effort in these projects. The success of any environmental endeavour depends on community support.'

— Joyce Stevens

"Here is a person whose knowledge and eloquence were influential during the many weeks of hearing that led to major revisions in Carmel's general plan, who has taken an active leadership role in supporting the campaigns of local political candidates, who appeared before the Carmel City Council and the planning commission many times and before public hearings in Monterey, Salinas, Seaside and Marina where her articulate arguments have helped to change minds and forge compromises and win long-sought victories," Holliday said.

Assemblyman Sam Farr praised her work on Hatton Canyon Freeway, stating that it was Stevens who brought the models of what the freeway would look like that got him involved in the process and began the series of meetings on the proposed project. Stevens has been an opponent of Caltrans' design for the freeway. She has done similar work with the Monterey Bay Dunes Coalition.

Stevens gave credit to others for their involvement in these projects.

"I am just a small part of the overall effort in these projects. The success of any environmental endeavor depends on community support," Stevens in an interview later. "John Muir is my mentor and for me, preservation of the planet is the only meaningful work to be involved in. The planet is as important as each of our own living rooms."

Stevens was a staff archititect at Fort Ord for 23 years and grew up in Alaska.

"When I was 19, I decided I would move to Carmel though I had never seen it. I decided that because I heard they did not cut down trees," she said.

The move had to wait until she was 30 years old, she added, when she moved here with her daughter Robin Stevens, now Robin Moran, a resident and artist in Carmel Valley.

In addition to Farr, Stevens received recognition from Rep. Leon Panetta and 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman through written communication.

It was the second citizen of the year award granted by the CRA. The first recepient was Carmel City Councilman Jim Wright.

Public works dept. to begin projects on streets, utilities

CARMEL'S PUBLIC Works Department is planning a number of street and utility projects for this year.

The department hopes to repave San Carlos from Eighth to 13th Avenue and overlay Junipero Avenue from Third Avenue to Camino Del Monte. These projects could start as early as May 1990, according to Jim Cullem, director of Carmel Public Works Department. The department also expects to begin seal coating various residential areas in late spring.

Cal-Am Water Co. plans to install a 16-inch water line along Rio Road from Highway 1 to 13th Avenue. Cal-Am will also be replacing its line on Second Avenue from Palou to San Antonio.

The sanitary district hopes to continue its line replacement on Monte Verde from Ninth Avenue to 13th Avenue this year.

PG&E will be working on Dolores, Lincoln, Vista, First, and Second avenues from February to May.

Scheduled work is subject to available funding, Cullem said, and some unscheduled work may be required by emergencies or changed priorities.

For more information please call the Public Works Department at 624-3543.

A winning combination

THE SKILL and teamwork of this year's Carmel High varsity basketball team have proven to be a winning combination. With a 6-2 league record going into last Tuesday's game against Pacific Grove, their expectations are high.

In preseason play, the Carmel High team held a record of 11-2 and dominated in many of their practice games. The victory against Monterey High School built up the confidence level of the Carmel team and prepared them for this year's season. The game taught them the importance of teamwork and mental determination.

The teamwork of this year's group has been one of the strong points leading to their success. Chris Prieto, a senior guard on the team, feels, "We have played together for so long that we've recognized each other's individual talents, and we allow everyone on the court to shine."

This recognition of individual talents allows a strong feeling of team unity. Working together has helped the Carmel team to excel in all aspects of the game. Lance Scott, a junior forward, agrees with this idea, "I think what brings our team together is that we all get along very well. We have been playing together for two years, unlike most teams in the league."

This year's varsity team has proven to be one of the most well-rounded and talented teams ever at Carmel High School. "The strongest point of our team is that we are a well-rounded team," Lance says, "We have a couple strong inside players and we can all hit from the field. We have a lot of team speed this year that we didn't have last year."

Another strong point of this year's team is their years of experience. Many of the players have played together since the seventh-grade and the experience they have gained has been invaluable. Brandy Lierman, a senior forward, feels that this experience has taught them to handle pressure and to play wisely. "Our strongest point is our ability to stay under control," he says. "We work the ball around very well and can get off a good shot."

A strong factor in the success of this year's basketball team has been the overwhelming support of its fans. Students, faculty, parents, and the inspirational high school band have become a sixth man for the team. They continue to show their support at every game with overcrowded bleachers and loud chanting. The most famous of these chants being, "ELS-BER-RY!!", signifiying another score from the Padres' David Elsberry.

The team is now striving for a league championship, but they play every game with equal motivation and energy. Each player has the CCS playoffs in mind, but no one expects to get there easily. Hard work, motivation, and continued support from their fans are all necessities for reaching this long-term goal.

If the Carmel High Varsity basketball team continues to use its winning combination of skill and teamwork, the goals they have set can be achieved.

Come watch Carmel High's last home game against King City, Friday, Feb. 9th, at 7:30 p.m. in the Carmel High gym.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Soup to nuts

I WAS reminded, while having lunch in town the other day, that Carmel has some 50-plus restaurants within its one square mile, or approximately one restaurant for every 80 residents.

That square mile, of course, comprises the entire town, business and residential districts combined. If one considered only the business district of some 15 square blocks, it would most certainly constitute more potential indigestion per square foot than anywhere else in the world. That's no reflection on the restaurants themselves, many of which, I have found to be very good. It does, however, underscore the fact that a great many people come to Carmel with food on their mind.

Food has been the foundation of more than just our expanded waistlines. It and the social system built up around it have considerably enriched our language. The title of this week's column is probably a local corruption of the Latin ob ovo usque ad mala which, literally translated means from the eggs to the apples. The expression derives from the Roman practice of beginning a meal with eggs and funishing with fruit. Our use of the expression, however, has quite another meaning.

The Latin refers to completeness in the sense of going from beginning to end and is more likely translated from start to finish. From soup to nuts, as we use it today, seems more readily to imply a complete selection.

The military word for food, chow, originated in the Navy. It too is probably a corruption, but this time of the South China pidgin word chow-chow, which also means food, and is a word brought back to the west by crews of the 19th century tea clippers. Other foreign words have entered our gastronomic lexicon such as gumbo and cajun. Gumbo is a pure Bantu word brought to Louisiana by African slaves. Gumbo is okra, a root used in local stews, such as chicken gumbo and shrimp gumbo, and out of which has grown a distinctive style of cooking called cajun.

Cajun is a southern accent corruption of Acadian which refers to the French settlers who came to Louisiana from Nova Scotia and who have influenced the local cooking. The descendents of these settlers have retained a trace of their patois, a distinctive pattern of speech unique to the delta region.

No meal is complete without good conversation and by stretching just a bit we can include the phrase to chew the fat in today's samples. The origin of this phrase is found in the homes of colonial America, where pork and bacon were cured and dried by hanging the slices over the open fire above the hearth. When visitors came around to chat they warmed themselves before the fire where the host would cut off and offer his guest a piece of the bacon to chew on while they talked. From this practice, casual conversation became known as chewing the fat.

In addition to conversation, libation is a constant companion of food. The word groggy is interesting in this sense, having taken its origin from a nickname given by sailors to an 18th century British admiral, Lord Edward Vernon. Vernon, who wore a cloak of grogham, a course fabric of silk, wool and mohair stiffened with gum, decided that British seamen ought not drink their rum straight and ordered it diluted with water. The sailors, who had already begun referring to him as Old Grog because of his clothes, applied this nickname to the watered-down rum. The further application of groggy resulted from the effect produced by the diluted rum, because of the additional amount one had to trink to become drunk.

Square meal comes from the original square piece of wood containing a hollowed center, which was used as an early plate in roadside taverns. The board in room and board refers to the same plate, since these were provided by the inn to travelers.

Just desert is not a term involved in food, but because of its sound, it is often misspelled with a double s, as in dessert. The correct spelling of the word we pronounce de-ZERT in this phrase is d-e-s-e-r-t and has nothing to do with the food at the end of a meal. It is concerned instead with what one deserves, our reward if you will, good or bad, and in this sense has become confused with dessert. It is spelled the same as the word we pronouce DEZ-ert, a place for horned toads and rattlesnakes. The culprit in all this confusion, according to Cynthia Dessen of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is an ancient French verb.

The verb, dessevir, means to clear the table and it is from that verb that we obtain dessert which is what we serve once the table is cleared. A different French verb with one s, deserter, meaning to withdraw, is the basis for our word to desert one's post. Another French verb, the one in question, the ancient form desevir, meaning to deserve, is the root word for our meaning of reward or punishment in just desert, not by the way, deserts.

Perhaps only in the ancient comic ritual of the pie in the face, can one be said to have received both one's just desert and just dessert.

FIRE LINES

By Art Black

Check your smoke detector!

IT IS an established fact that a smoke detector in your home can save your life. There are cases on record where smoke detectors wrapped as gifts under Christmas trees activated when the Christmas trees caught fire and saved the lives of the residents.

However, in order to properly function, a smoke detector must be properly installed and, more importantly, properly maintained.

First of all, which smoke detector should you buy? There are many different models available, with varying features. All smoke detectors sold in the State of California must have the State Fire marshal's seal on them, attesting that they meet minimum standards. There are models with built-in lights and newer models that can be checked with a flashlight. The model you decide to buy is your choice, based on price and features.

Installation is the next step. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for installing your smoke detector. Generally, a smoke detector should be installed on each level of your home, and should be audible in the sleeping rooms in your home. If you are installing smoke detectors on the ceiling, they must be at least four inches from the wall. If you install your smoke detector on a wall, it must be between 4 and 12 inches from the ceiling.

Now for the hard part! It is estimated that fifty percent of all smoke detectors installed in the United States do not work. The do not work because the batteries are either dead or have been removed. Remember to keep extra batteries on hand, change the batteries once a year, and to check the detectors once a month. A good way to remember to change the batteries is to change the batteries on your birthday, and check the detectors every month on the same date!

Clip and save the checklist printed with this column. Use it to record your regular monthly tests of your smoke detectors. Stickers reminding you to "check your detector" are available at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Department — stop in and pick some up!

SPARKY SAYS:

"Test Your Smoke Detector!"

1. Keep spare batteries on hand
2. Replace batteries at least once a year
3. Test your smoke detectors once a month
4. Place a smoke detector at every level in your home
5. Check off monthly tests below

Golfing gala

CAN YOU imagine receiving invitations to dine with two presidents of two countries in the same week? (Or, even one president?) AND, having to cancel one of them? That happened to former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood this very week.

Mr. Eastwood perked up the pro-am golf tournament with his presence on the links and at several parties before jetting out Tuesday to dine with French president Francois Mitterand.

The invitation he was forced to cancel was a request to sit on the dais with president George Bush at the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco the following day. He honored his prior commitment in Europe. C'est la vie with the world famous.

Meanwhile, au bord de mer. No doubt about it, the social highlight of golf week in Pebble was the Barbara and Marvin Davis party at The Inn at Spanish Bay. The ballroom was turned into an ancient Roman setting. Roman sculptures (some with neon halos), white toga wall drapes, red draped tables and chairs with gold rope ties and zillions of roses in huge arrangements (done by a New York firm). And food, food, food, beautifully displayed. Delicious food fit for a Roman ruler (and golfers as well).

It was "Hollywood Comes To Pebble Beach" night. With Sean Connery, Michael Keaton, Don Johnson, Jack Lemmon, Burt Lancaster, Hal Linden, Kevin Dobson, Robert Wagner, Glenn Campbell and a sprinkling of baseball and football stars. Of course, hometown star Clint Eastwood was there, too.

Local movie star Tom Bruce was a great scout for me (finding Hollywood stars). After all, Tom along with his wife and two children, starred in a Clint Eastwood film. We are lucky that he has decided not to "go Hollywood" and is still with us. Thanks, Tom.

(Interesting party sidelight I just happened to hear: As a gentleman kissed a lady on one cheek she said, "Oh no, you should be continental and kiss me on both cheeks." After he did so, she piped forth, "That's better. Besides, I like your cologne.")

Often there is a lot of humor at the social-life-after-leaving-the-links. Fuzzy Zoeller (known as the funniest golfer on the circuit), was a fountain of laughs at the Sponsors Reception at the Monterey Sheraton Hotel. Other guests chuckled as they watched him kid around with Dan Rostenkowski, his partner Mark Evans or whoever was near.

Robert Allen (CEO of AT&T and a 10-handicapper), welcomed the guests and introduced a few special people at the big shindig in the English Garden setting provided by the Sheraton. Beautiful flowers were everywhere, white trellises, a bubbling fountain and tulip table. The edible (chocolate) tulips were so realistic that many folk passed them right by as they headed for a seat at a table covered with colorful floral chintz.

Sen. and Mrs. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming came, as did two of Bing Crosby's sons, Harry and Nathaniel. Cliff Robertson showed up at the party even though his bad back ruled out golf. (I think he prefers tennis anyway). Cliff fell in love with the Monterey Peninsula when he was honored at the first Monterey Film Festival and returned for the second festival honoring Jimmy Stewart. We talked of a possible revival of the festival in the future.

The historic "Clambake For Men Only" is now history. A new tradition was born in the initial year of the '90s decade. The AT&T Tee-Off Party held the night before the tournament began found the ladies joining the men at the Monterey Conference Center for a party to honor all of the golf tournament volunteers.

In this day and age it seems out of place to separate the sexes and certainly it was unfair to ask the generous entertainers to

KEVIN DOBSON (of Knots Landing fame), played for the first time in the AT&T Pro-Am. He was accompanied to the Davis party by his daughter.

TWO CELEBRITY golfers who played in the AT&T: Sean Connery and Burt Lancaster. They believe in golf parties too.

HAL AND Frances Linden stopped for a minute to greet a well-wisher at Marvin Davis party in Pebble Beach.

MICHAEL KEATON, the popular star of Batman, created a stir with his first-ever participation in the AT&T tourney and at the Spanish Bay party.

give one show for the men and then dash over to the Sheraton and do another one for the ladies. (And, play golf the next day.)

A cheery note was struck at the party as guests were greeted at the door by Soroptimist Club members in perky red/white/-blue outfits. Food tables were placed on three levels of the center and the large "Buddha Room" on the top level soon was packed with AT&T golf volunteers out for a social evening.

Each guest was given an American flag as the Serra Ballroom doors opened and the flags fanned the air in rhythm to the music of the Pacific Grove High School Marching Band as they started the evening's entertainment.

Louis Russo (executive director of the AT&T tournament), came onstage to thank his wonderful volunteer force. More than 1,200 volunteers devote so much time and talent to this outstanding yearly event which donates so much to local not-for-profit organizations. Included in that 1,200 or so are many AT&T employees who come from all over the country druing vacation time to help out. One man told me he was assigned (his first year), to clean golf shoes. And he did so with a smile.

For the 27th year, that great actor and golf enthusiast, Jack Lemmon, was in there once again trying to make that final cut. Sunday Feb. 4th was declared "Jack Lemmon Day" by a certificate presented by Sam Karas.

William Borland, chairman of the Golf Foundation, brought Clint Eastwood (board member), onstage and Clint introduced AT&T's Robert Allen, who appeared briefly to thank the volunteers. Then Clint introduced Bing Crosby's long-time friend, Phil Harris.

In his deep, resonant, slow drawl Phil said he was in the hospital recently and asked, "Am I going to die?" and was told, "Don't worry until we find a safe place to bury your liver."

Pat DuVal, the singing sheriff, opened the stage show with a medley of old-time tunes, some patriotic songs and lead the singing of the National Anthem. Marquee stars sparkled on the walls as a star-studded cast (also volunteers), brought the house down for an hour and 40 minutes with a big time show.

Humor was a part of every act. The Gatlin Brothers & Band, Vic Damone, B.J. Thomas to Glenn Campbell, who loves one-liners. He told of a woman who got stuck on a muddy road and was throwing everything on the mud, including ashes, trying to get out. When asked, "Why don't you get your husband to help you?" she replied, "That IS my husband."

That smoothie, handsome Vic Damone, sang a few of his oldies-but-goodies and the Gatlins played their new song Under The Texas Moon they recently performed with the Atlanta Symphony. And for the first time, a comic performer was added to the show.

Kenny Bob Davis came out with "all of his 11 hairs in front fluffed up to look just right." He gave his new set of golf rules that he hopes will be adopted. 1. No lost balls (after all, someone will find them and sell them, so they are really stolen balls). 2. If a ball stops on the rim of the hole, you can "blow it in." 3. Any ball that goes over the hole and doesn't drop in is counted as going in. Great set of new rules. We'll see what happens.

The Tee-Off Party was great fun and the volunteers thanked the entertainers with rousing applause. And many thanks to two special people: Louis and Janice Russo.

Dynamic Peter Ueberroth began his AT&T golf week with a speech for the Community Hospital of MP luncheon. He is a good athlete and holds only a 10 handicap for golf. But, I digress. Back to the inspiring talk at the conference center for PHILIP NESWITZ, who knew Jack Davis, talked to Marvin Davis about his late father.

GUESTS AT the English Garden party given by AT&T at the Sheraton included Cliff Robertson and tennis (and now golf), star Stan Smith and his wife Margie, who was the third best tennis player in the country at age 12 and still plays a great game at home in Hilton Head, S.C.

PRO GOLFER Nathaniel Crosby attended the sponsors party with his wife Kathy. Nathaniel took over the tourney after his dad's death, and although he's a golf pro, didn't feel his game was up to par to compete this year.

800 members of the auxiliary and the Hospital Foundation.

Mr. Ueberroth, who received one of only two Olympic Gold Awards given to an American, took very subtle digs at the press saying, "In 1980 when I was appointed to work on the Olympics it took the press four months to find San Jose State, where I graduated in the top 83 percent of my class." To the laughter he retorted, "Why are you laughing? I'll bet most of you did too."

"Why was I asked to speak? I'm free and I'm not very smart. They wanted to start off the decade with someone like me and build up from here." Then his carefully thought-out incisive and inspiring speech disproved his statement. The real reason for accepting the engagement was because his late assistant, Sherry Cockle, received excellent health care at CHOMP. Sherry's daughter, her husband and son were in the audience, as was Jane Dart, whose husband, Justin, was another great friend of Peter's.

He is a great believer in the individual (stating that one woman started Meals on Wheels), in a free society, and in the art of giving by influence, time and energy. He believes in volunteerism and said that volunteerism (his secret weapon in the Olympics), is prevalent in the USA and almost no other country in the world with millions going to work everyday and not getting paid. He had 77,000 Olympic volunteers who received no parking fees, no free lunches and no free tickets. The only pay they received was to make America proud and that's why he had 250 million $$$ left over after the Olympics.

He is especially proud of the 40 million Americans who went out to pass the flame. A 9-year-old girl in New Mexico carried the torch further than she had ever gone before. Just as she made it two-thirds of the way and thought she couldn't go another step, her school friends yelled out "Run, Annie, Run." Doing what was impossible for a physically handicapped child — she finished. And, as she handed the flame to the next runner, a policeman was seen reaching for his handkerchief.

His final statements were, "I am an optimist for this country. I'm an optimist for CHOMP and I am optimistic about you." Then he presented a $50,000 check to the Hospital Mammography Center. (He has my vote for president, but, will he run?)

Of course, there were many other golf parties. Nancy and Homer Hayward's "Aquarium Golf Party" David and Joan Sailer's "9th Golf Party" where guests could watch the action on Spyglass. "The Roaring '20s Commemorative Decanter Party" at Doubletree Hotel and the "Come Swing With Us — First Authentic Pro-Am Clambake" given by Philip Lombardi and Barbie Burdick in Phil's lovely Skyline Forest home.

It would take more than a downpour of rain to dampen the spirits of the people at this fabulous relaxing get-together. Delbert (of the Hyatt Regency staff), made wonderful pasta to order and people kept returning for more. The Canadian Crab was cold and tasty. In other words, the food was great: It was a time to relax, talk tournament (or whatever), and relish a good time with friends. Thanks to warm cordial hosts Phil and Barbie.

All in all, it was a wonderful AT&T week that comes but once a year. Could we survive it all if it came more often? Probably not.

SENIOR LINE

Living wills

Q. AS a retired person I rent a home in Monterey County, have no relatives living in the United States and have made a friend of mine the executor of my will.

My estate consists of an IRA, CD's, investments in AARP Group investments, and some stocks for a total of $80,000. I keep a savings account of $2,000, of which my friend is co-signer.

The instructions in my will are simple; collect the monies, forward the lump sum to my sister in Europe who then will divide it between nieces and nephews.

My question: What arrangement would make it easiest for my executor, that I can do now to simplify all procedures? A notarized "living will" is on file with my physician.

A. IT is difficult to answer these questions without more information. If you have made no provision as to beneficiaries, your investments will automatically go to your estate subject to probate and thus probate thus fees.

The IRA is also subject to income taxes that have been deferred so your estate will need to pay these taxes plus whatever else you owe on other income.

Your will instructions are not too clear since it does not say if the division of your estate is to be divided equally or otherwise.

If you wish to eliminate probate, those investments which are not in the IRA could be in joint tenancy with your friend. If your above investments are part of your IRA, then they will automatically go to your estate.

There may also be some in inheritance taxes to be paid by the recipients of your will. I would suggest that if you are unclear about the consequences of your will you should consult with your attorney and/or tax accountant.

Regarding your living will, you may want to consider a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care. If you did not read my article on this document, please contact your attorney or physician.

Service to others

BEVERLY FINLAYSON, a national American Red Cross instructor, held a training session for Red Cross staff and volunteers Jan. 31 at the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter house. Finlayson stressed that volunteer and paid staff should give service to others in an organized way when working with the community. The five primary values, she said, are humanitarianism, impartiality, service excellence, volunteerism, and internationalism. The training also introduced guidelines developed as a framework for Red Cross volunteers and paid staff to work together harmoniously. Twenty-six members of Red Cross, some from as far away as Lemoore Naval Air Station in Porterville and King's County, attended the all-day session. (Alan McEwen photo.)

FOSTER HOMES SOUGHT

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs caring homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home - whether it be for six months or the whole year while family reunification services are offered...or eventually a permanent home. Children who have been made court dependents after protective custody and need homes.

People willing to make a commitment of themselves, their time, their energy but most of all their non-judgmental flexability to care for the children placed by Children's Protective Services are greatly needed. Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled. It takes time to become licensed.

WESTERNERS TO MEET FEB. 12

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS TO MEET FEB. 8

"County Government, Who is in Charge?" is the title of Santa Cruz County Supervisor Gary Patton's talk at 12:45 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8 at Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters general meeting at First Presbyterian Church, 501 El Dorado in Monterey. A salad bar luncheon will be held at noon.

FREE DENTAL CARE DAY PLANNED

A special valentine for area residents is offered by volunteer dentists of the Monterey Bay Dental Society. A day of free dental care is planned on Saturday, Feb. 10th, for those who cannot afford to have emergency dental needs treated.

"We want to treat people who have no money and no insurance," said Dr. Max Ebrahimian, public relations chairman for the dental society. "These are the people that fall between the cracks." Nine offices have been chosen from Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. The office in Monterey is Dr. Edward Stoddard, 880 Cass St., No. 203, Monterey (he will perform extractions only.)

CHILD ABUSE COUNCIL TO SELL COOKBOOKS

The Child Abuse Prevention Council is taking orders now for their hor d'oeuvres cookbook which is scheduled to come out in April during Child Abuse Prevention Month.

The cookbook is titled, Friends & Hor d'oeuvres...A Winning Combination, and will be sold for $10 each.

The cookbook will include recipes from adults and children and will feature local children's art work throughout the book. The spirit of this cookbook is friends joining together to make a difference, because "It shouldn't hurt to be a child."

Information about the council and tips to help prevent Child abuse will be in the back of the book.

To order send $10 to: CAPC Cookbook, 1000 South Main St., Suite No. 108, Salinas, CA 93901. For information call 755-4474. Proceeds from the sale of this cookbook will help:

Continue a community-wide education and prevention program; train teachers, social workers, law enforcement, and health care professionals to recognize and handle child abuse cases; ensure open communications between public and private agencies to maintain a network that protects children; establish a community reference library on child abuse; inform lawmakers about the needs of our community's children.

Financing Your Future

Q. Do I really need an estate plan? What's the worst that could happen without one?

A: What happens is that federal and state governments put their plans into action—plans you may not like. Formal estate planning helps ensure financial security and distributes your assets according to your wishes at the lowest possible tax rate.

If any of the following situations decribes your circumstances, consulting with a professional estate planner will help you:

One, you have a gifted child or spouse. Planning can assure them the financial support to fully develop their talents.

Two, you have a spouse or heir who can't or doesn't want to handle assets or run a business. Foresight in the form of an estate plan will avoid thrusting unwanted responsibility upon them.

Three, you have property in more than one state. Planning can prevent two or more states from taxing the same property.

Four, you want to leave assets to charity. A sound plan can maximize the amount the charity will receive.

If you want your wishes for your estate to prevail, star your estate planning today.

THE EXIGENCIES of space being what they are, parts of this (or any) column may end up "on the wall" instead of within the newspaper. Such was the case in my last column: my account of Splendid Senior Barbara Lysle came out in considerably abbreviated form. Barbara deserves full treatment, so here are the missing paragraphs:

Barbara, who had her own lamp shop in Pasadena for more than 30 years, settled happily into this small community, making friends and branching out into interior decorating "for friends and friends of friends." Soon Joe, who had been a Union Oil Co. accountant, was doing tax work on his own time. The couple traveled, too. Their three children — son Rich and twin daughters Mary and Martha — visited often and eventually the twins, between them, gave Barbara and Joe five grandchildren.

After Joe's death in 1984, Barbara looked for new interests and found SCORE (Senior Corps of Retired Executives), volunteering her business experience to serve those who wanted to go into business or had business problems to solve. She thoroughly enjoyed that.

Barbara finally let her career as an interior decorator wind down last year. But a number of Carmel area residents remember her fondly when they look around their Hacienda, Carmel Manor or Del Mesa homes.

We talked just before Christmas, sharing memories of childhood vacations in Carmel. Barbara was especially excited about the coming holiday, as she would be meeting her son's fiancee for the first time. Her Christmas gift to her three children was special, and typical: she had written a reminiscence about all the houses she and their father had lived in through the years. Home, family and community were all-important to her then - and still are.

WHAT'S IN a name? Well, something — apparently. A local security company, which provides services to Spanish Bay, was advertising for a "residences monitor" and a "facility and perimeter monitor." When asked why they used these unusual titles, the security firm's representative said, "Because that's precisely what they are." Oh.

And if you drop a piece of paper or some other "little thing" at Carmel Plaza, the "litter patrol person" may be right behind you to pick it up. It does have a nice ring to it. Also new (to me) in the help wanted columns: "cleaning technician," and "breakfast attendant." Are we getting a whole new lexicon of job titles?

THE SENSE of belonging to a community is very important to Desk Sgt. Joyce Farris, Carmel Police Department. She didn't find it until she came to Carmel — not in Chicago, or New York or in the Washington, D.C. area. Now Joyce is retiring and she is already planning the ways in which she will find that same sense of belonging in Laughlin, Nevada.

"Laughlin, Nev.?" I asked. Her response was quick, suggesting that in the matter of where to live in retirement, Joyce Farris is as well-organized as she has been in all her activities for the past 16 years with the police department.

"It's gorgeous! In desert country, so it's dry. A great combination of being in the country, away from things, and still being close to good restaurants and theaters. And it's growing." Joyce will still be around water, but it will be lakes instead of the ocean.

Will she be missed? Carmel Police Chief Jack McGilvray said: "She has been one of our real mainstays; we are very sorry to lose her. Right after she came, there were new state-mandated programs for records management. She took that on and did a tremendous job, completely re-organizing the department's records system. She also organized our evidentiary property storage system and has continued to make sure we complied with all state standards." There's another side to Sgt. Farris, too: "She's very good dealing with the public in person and on the phone."

Joyce and her mother came to California and to Carmel in 1973, drawn as so many of us are by the natural beauties of the area, which they had enjoyed on two previous vacation trips. "I saw the ad for a parking control officer," she related, "and I thought it would be fun to tell my friends in Illinois that I was a 'meter maid' in Carmel! I had no idea what it would come to mean to me."

She was hired by then-chief Klaumann, the first of four chiefs under whom she has served. It turned out to be a good job, with good benefits, and its main attraction for Joyce has been that she met a lot of local people (especially "old-timers") who intrigued and delighted her. During those first years she made it her business to slow up on her scooter and get people to talk to her. "I came to treasure Carmel because of these people," she said.

Promotions came her way over the next 16 years. She became the first female supervisor in the CPD (under Chief Bill Ellis), and then desk sergeant, which she describes as comparable to office manager. She supervised the dispatchers and the 911 system and was responsible for training the staff of the police services unit (dispatching and records). You could also hear her pleasant but firm voice on the dispatching console at times; it was a hands-on job.

So why is Carmel losing this splendid employee/citizen? "It's time," she said. "I have the right combination of years' service and age so I can retire." The timing is right for her and her mother, who remains her close companion, to travel, which is one of Joyce's delights.

It's obvious that special feeling of belonging to a community won't be left behind. Joyce, who organized tours for seniors and was a volunteer at Community Hospital, with over 9000 hours to her credit, plans to become active in the Laughlin community right away. She sold her Carmel home and bought a condominium there, which will be her base for learning about Laughlin and about the hotel and gaming industry, in which she may eventually find employment. "I already have a library card!" she told me, "so you know I'll be doing a lot of reading too."

I asked her what has changed in Carmel and the Carmel Police Department during her 16 years here. "There weren't any empty store fronts 16 years ago," she said. "I remember one time when the owner of a store gave me a dress to take home and try on...I don't think that would happen today! As for the police department, it has grown in professionalism, there's more emphasis on training and advancement. There were two parking officers when I came - now there are five, so it's numbers too."

What doesn't change? "The service orientation of the Carmel P.D. and its response to citizens and visitors."

And, we can add, Sgt. Farris's efficiency, courtesy and compassion. It's just that Laughlin, Nevada, will be the beneficiary now instead of Carmel, California.

Student of the month

THE CARMEL High School English Department has named senior Mona Johnson as student of the month. Along with reading fine literature and writing, Johnson enjoys fine art, food and relaxation. Her other interests include basketball and drama. She adds that one of her biggest passions is fashion, with any extra money going toward clothes and fashion magazines. She plans to attend a four-year college and, someday, own her own fashion magazine. Says Johnson, "This way I can incorporate everything I enjoy: art, design, advertisement, photography and fashion into a career that will provide satisfaction, a creative outlet and, hopefully, lots of travel."

All members and ladies of the parish are invited to attend; refreshments will be served.

GLORIA DEUKMEIJAN TO SPEAK IN MONTEREY

First lady of California, Gloria Deukmeijan, comes to Monterey on Friday, Feb. 9, to speak on volunteerism. Deukmeijan, a long-standing advocate of volunteerism, serves on the board of directors of the volunteer centers of California and is active in other charities, including the Senior Gleaners of Sacramento who collect food for the homeless.

In 1989, Deukmeijan established the First Lady of California Volunteer Awards to honor those who have given of themselves to make life better for others in their communities, and the state. These awards were presented in November to individuals from the business, community, retired, and student sector.

The breakfast to be held at the Monterey Sheraton Hotel at 7:30 a.m. will benefit the Volunteer Center of the Monterey Peninsula which serves as the Clearinghouse for Volunteers on the Monterey Peninsula.

Reservations for the breakfast may be made by calling the Volunteer Center at 373-6177.

EXPERT ON RUSSIA TO SPEAK FEB. 10

Dr. William Potter, new director of the Center for Contemporary Russian Studies at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the World Affairs Council on Saturday, Feb. 10.

Potter, an international authority on the Soviet Union, recently authored Soviet Decision-making for Chernobyl. Before joining MIIS he taught 10 years at UCLA, where he served for five years as the executive director of the Center for International Strategic Affairs. A frequent traveler to the USSR, he has made two trips there in the past four months to attend conferences.

The luncheon at noon, preceded at 11:30 by a wine reception, will be held at Rancho Canada, Carmel Valley Road. The lecture begins at 12:45. For reservations or information call Rosabelle Hamann or the World Affairs Council.

LEADERSHIP MONTEREY PENINSULA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION PLAN FUNDRAISER

The Alumni Association of the Leadership Monterey Peninsula program is sponsoring a dinner/auction fund-raising event on Saturday, Feb. 10 at San Carlos Hall on Church Street in Monterey. Hors d'oeuvres and silent auction browsing will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the buffet dinner at 6:30. The Leadership Monterey Peninsula Board of Directors are donating the wine for the 5:30 silent auction cocktail hour.

The live auction will begin at 7:30. Doug Robertson, 1986 LMP graduate and owner of Creative Catering, will provide the buffet dinner. Joy Hoang, also a 1986 LMP graduate, and owner of Outrageous Occasions, will decorate the hall.

Tickets, at $15 per person, will be available at the door. Reservations may also be made by contacting Jay Roland at Rolands and Associates, 373-2025. Proceeds from the dinner/auction will benefit the Leadership Monterey Peninsula Scholarship fund and Alumni Association special events and community projects.

Beer, wine and soft drinks will be extra. All proceeds will benefit Junipero Serra School. Live music and prizes will be featured at the event.

20/20 VISION PRESENTATION FEB. 13

"20/20 Vision - an Opinion is a Terrible Thing to Waste!" is the title of a presentation to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 13 in the Bingham Room at the Sunset Center, San Carlos and Eighth, Carmel, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

20/20 Vision is a service that enables busy people to work for peace, the environment, and human needs issues for an investment of only 20 minutes a month in a focused, effective way. Started by a group of citizens in Western Massachusetts, its remarkable success in influencing the attitudes and votes of policy-makers there has led to a nationwide expansion; groups in 51 congressional districts are now in operation and forming every month. Here, in the 16th district, 20/20 Vision is only in its sixth month and has over 100 subscribers and is growing rapidly.

Special speaker about 20/20 Vision will be Richard Mark, the Washington D.C. director and lobbyist, who has many years of political organizing to his credit, having held key national positions with groups such as Common Cause and Union for Concerned Scientists.

Admission is free. For further details, call 372-8887.

FLYING DOCTORS TO HOLD ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING

The Flying Doctors/Los Medicos Voladores will hold its annual organizational meeting on Tuesday, February 13, at the New Monterey Community Center, corner of Dickman and Lighthouse, in New Monterey. A board meeting, open to the public, begins at 6:30 p.m., while the general meeting will be at 7:30 p.m.

The group, which brings volunteer medical services to remote villages in the state of Sonora, Mexico, will be planning its monthly trips, as well as discussing its adopt-a-village program and outreach for volunteers.

Membership is open to anyone interested in volunteering assistance. Specialty skills, including piloting, medical and interpreting ability, are welcome, but not necessary, to join the group.

UNITED WAY ANNUAL AWARDS DINNER

On Tuesday, Feb. 13, United Way of the Monterey Peninsula will hold a 1990 Tailgate Party at Spanish Bay at 6:30 p.m. This year's annual awards dinner will be celebrated with a football theme and there will be many celebrities and football stars to honor the NFL and all the work of the volunteers for their support of United Way.

55 ALIVE DEFENSIVE DRIVING CLASS SET

The American Association of Retired Persons announces its next Defensive Driving Class Feb. 13-14. This eight-hour course provides the Department of Motor Vehicle certificate for a reduction in automobile insurance for three years.

The meeting will be held at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero, Pacific Grove, the time each day 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The topics covered include problems of driving associated with the normal aging process, defensive measures for these problems, and the Vehicle Code for a license renewal. Classes are also planned for April and May.

Information concerning these three classes may be obtained from the Alliance on Aging 646-4636. The State Law limits class size to 30.

STEEN TO TALK AT CVPOA ANNUAL MEETING FEB. 15

Newly re-elected officers and a slate of new board members will be installed at the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association annual meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15, at Hidden Valley. Brian Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust, will speak on land acquisition plans by the trust in Carmel Valley and adjacent areas in the months and years ahead.

Steen, an Iowa State University graduate with a major in forestry, has headed the Big Sur Land Trust since 1980 and has been instrumental in negotiating a total of nine scenic easements and seven fee title gifts of land to be conserved as open space. The value of the conserved properties is estimated at $15.5 million.

He will discuss with CVPOA members plans now afoot or planned for new land acquisitions in Carmel Valley and adjacent areas of the Monterey Peninsula. One will be acquisition of the Westbrook redwood timber lands south of Carmel Valley, a purchase just completed. It will involve conserving 1,100 acres on which are located the largest grove of redwood trees in the coastal area, Steen said.

Plans for acquiring land to establish a ridge top trail running from the Jack's Peak area to Los Laureles Grade will also be discussed by Steen together with a donation of land in the Porter Bowl area to the Trust by Ed Haber.

The trust's interest in maintaining the Sand City shoreline and steps being taken to protect it from commercial development will also be presented, Steen said.

Five incumbent officers of CVPOA all running unopposed in mail balloting by association members this month, will be installed at the meeting as will be three newly elected board members chosen from nine candidates. President Max Chaplin will give a summary of the past year's issues before CVPOA and the association's actions in preserving the Valley's rural and natural ambience.

Membership in the association now totals 1,274, Chaplin said, making it a potent voice speaking in behalf of Valley interests before the board of supervisors and county planning and other agencies. All members are urged to attend the annual meeting and meet new directors of the association, Chaplin emphasized.

Band on the run

CHILDREN OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION MEETING SET

A meeting of the Sergeant John Emmons Society, Children of the American Revolution was held recently following a program at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural Hisotry given by Paul Finnegan, assistant curator of the museum.

The young people present viewed the impressive collection of Indian basketry and heard of the lifestyle and customs of California Indians.

Jenna Harris, society president, convened a business meeting at the gazebo, in the park. She announced that the annual Children of the American Revolution California State Conference will be held March 24-25 in San Diego. The next meeting is planned for Feb. 12 and will be on conservation and tree planting.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments followed. For information on membership call senior society president Mrs. Christopher Harris (394-1686).

LOCAL STUDENTS HONORED BY UC SANTA BARBARA

Undergraduate students at the University of California, Santa Barbara achieving excellence in their academic work during the fall quarter have been selected for the Dean's Honor List. The honor is bestowed on students who have achieved a qualifying grade point average of 3.75 (A-minus), on a program of 12 or more graded units in the College of Letters and Science or 3.50 in the College of Engineering.

Carmel students named to the Dean's List include:

Katherine Leslie Aronson, a senior majoring in communications studies and sociology (and a Carmel High School graduate); Brandi Lynn Faia, a senior majoring in business economics (a graduate of RLS); Shannon Ashly Thomas, a freshman majoring in zoology (CHS graduate), and Raymond Frederick Luce III, a senior majoring in political science (another CHS graduate).

CARMEL SCIENTIST HONORED AT SACRAMENTO CONFERENCE

Dr. James Rote, a 22-year resident of Carmel Point, was presented the Distinguished Service Award Jan. 19 at the annual California Aquaculture Association (CAA) Conference in Sacramento.

The special award, which is occasionally given to individuals outside the aquaculture industry, was presented to Rote at the banquet dinner held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The 19th annual conference, which included a three-day technical program, was attended by approximately 400 fish farmers, mariculturists, researchers, students and government officials.

Rote, who works in the state capitol as the Principal Consultant to the legislature's Joint Committee on Fisheries and Aquaculture, was responsible for the passage and enactment of the 1982 California Aquaculture Development Act, which has served as the cornerstone for the aquaculture industry in the state. He has continued to provide legislative assistance to the industry to the present time.

In an unusually emotional ceremony, Rote was presented a plaque by outgoing chairman of the CAA Board, Tony Schuur. Schuur noted, "this award is long overdue in that Dr. Rote is almost single-handedly responsible for creating a strong foundation for our industry; Jim has been our friend for 15 years and it is impossible to say what his contribution has been."

Rote, who received his Ph.D. at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station, taught at Hopkins, the Moss Landing Marine Laboratories, and at UC Santa Cruz, before entering state and federal government service in 1973. In addition to holding positions with the state legislature, the state Resources Agency, and with the National Marine Fisheries Service, he served on both the State and Central Coast Regional Coastal Commissions in the late 1970s.

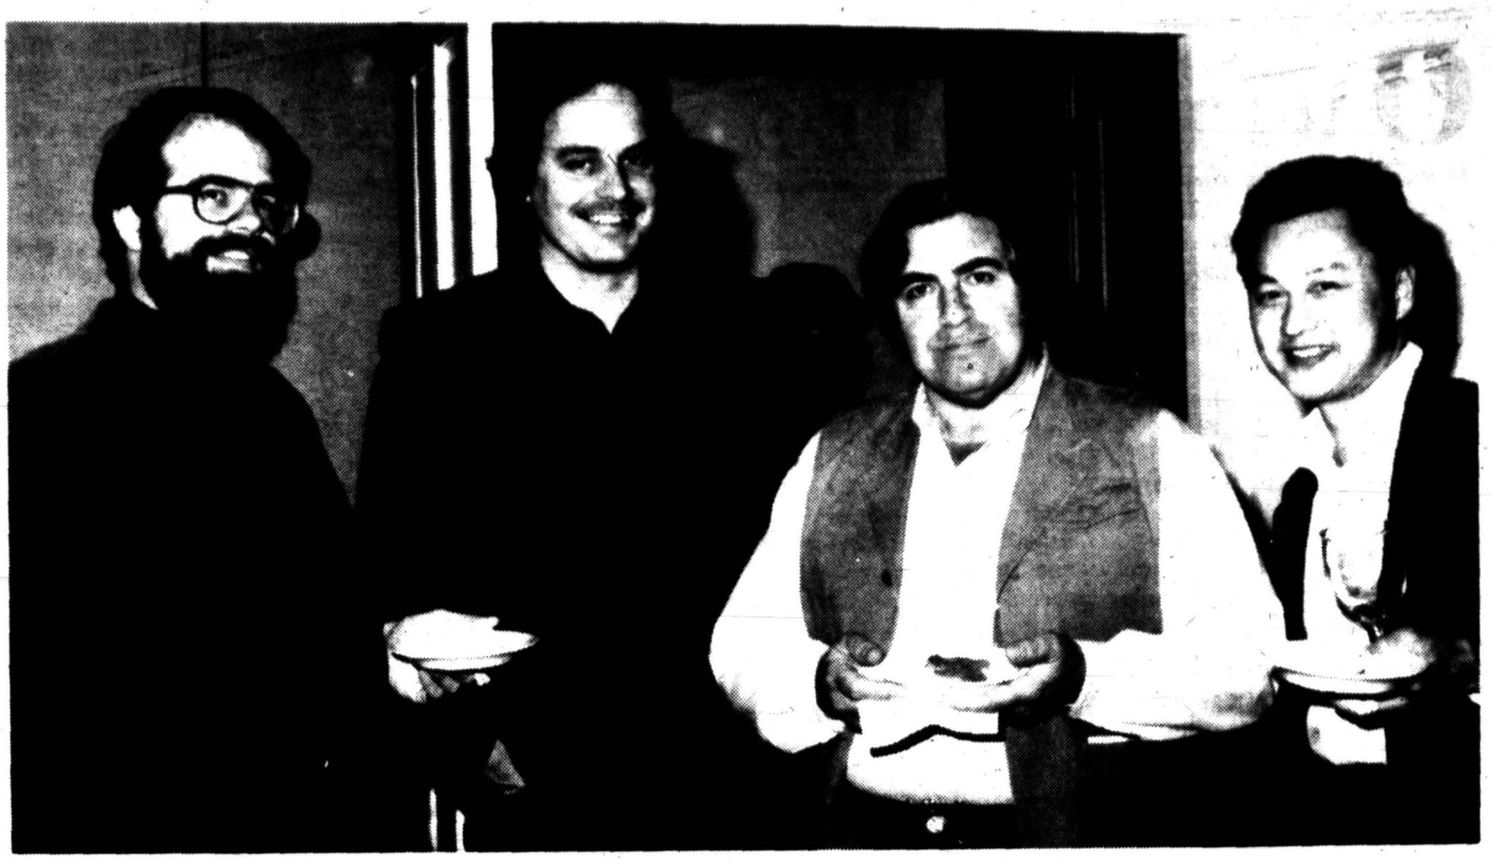
Rote lives with his wife Robin, a local Carmel area school teacher and tutor, and their daughter Rachel, who is currently in her junior year at UC Irvine.

PENINSULA JAYCEES ISSUE $20,000 IN FUNDS

The Monterey Peninsula Jaycees issued $20,046 to local non-profit agencies at their Distinguished Service Awards Banquet on Jan. 20. The funds had been raised throughout the 1989 fiscal year by Jaycees working at the Monterey County Fair Beer Booth, Oktoberfest, and at other projects.

The funds given included $250 to the Blind and Visually Impaired Center; $500 to the Monterey High School Songleaders; $500 to the Volunteer Center of the Monterey Peninsula; $600 to Monterey County Scholarship & Awards; $1,948 to the Buddy Program; $1,000 to the Boy Scouts; $1,000 to the Girl Scouts; $1,000 to the Visiting Nurse Association; $1,000 to the Family Service Agency; $1,000 to the Family Resource Center; $1,000 to Planned Parenthood of Monterey County; $1,000 to the Josephine Kernes Memorial for Education; $1,200 to the YWCA; $1,400 to the Monterey Rape Crisis Center; $1,500 to Peninsula Outreach Welcome House; $2,448 to the Easter Seal Society of the Monterey Bay Region; and $2,700 to the Salvation Army, Monterey Peninsula Corps.

BRIAN STEEN, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust, will speak at the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association's annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15 at Hidden Valley just off Carmel Valley Road in the valley. (Alan McEwen photo.)



Master in residence

MORE THAN 50 friends and the board of advisors of The Photographic Center welcomed internationally known photographer Paul Caponigro to its new Master-in-Residence program. Caponigro is the first artist to be invited to work on the Monterey Peninsula and share his talents with members of the community. He will be in residence until the first part of March. Joining Caponigro (second from right), at the party were (left to right), John Sexton, Brad Cole, and Wei Chang. Hosts for the party were Austin and Kathleen Barrows of Pebble Beach.

The Monterey Peninsula Jaycees are celebrating their 51st year of Community Service. The community donations were given at this time in celebration of Jaycee Week. Jaycees are citizens between the ages of 21 and 40 who are willing to give of their time to work towards betterment of their community.

"GOURMET GALA SAILS AWAY" NETS $60,000 FOR MARCH OF DIMES

The March of Dimes fifth annual Gourmet Gala — this year entitled "Gourmet Gala Sails Away" — netted $60,000 for research and services for healthy babies. Its chairman every year, Artie Early, was honored as Volunteer of the Year for raising over a quarter million dollars for the March of Dimes.

The $150 per person sold out with 483 "Very Black Tie" guests filling the ballroom of the Sheraton Monterey.

This year's celebrity line-up was an eclectic mix from film, television, sports and industry. Actress Brooke Shields headlined the event, preparing a "Three-Pepper Salad" with San Francisco 49er Riki Ellison in a kitchen environment inspired by the barrenness of Alaska and entitled "Hot Ice." It was designed by local architect Joseph Rock and landscape architect Scott Hall.

While most of the press attention focused on Shields, the gourmets were zeroing in on Brooks and Kate Firestone, winners of the Food and Wine Magazine Award, for overall excellence with their Chocolate Demi-Tasse.

Also taking the evening's cooking honors were: The New York Cheesecake prepared by Dorothy Durney and David and Christine Armanasco, Monterey County Restaurant Association Award for Best Dessert; the veal marikat prepared by Giselle McKensie, Dr. Roger Bartels and Dr. Daniel Strickland, International Club, Les Toque Blanche, Monterey Chapter, most outstanding Entree; Erin Morita and Alison Stilwell Cameron's Spareribs with Black Bean Sauce, Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs Award for most outstanding First Course; the potato bisque prepared by Artie Early, William Beckley and Tab Hunter, Ladies' Home Journal Award for the best "quick and elegant recipe"; the Indonesian Crab Fritters prepared by John Clark Gable and Daniel Durand, American Regional Cuisine Award for best recipe made with ingredients indigenous to the locale; the Spinach-Garlic Timbale prepared by Tom Oliver, Jonathan Price and Walter Soellner, Corning Creative Cookery Award for the most unusual and creative recipe of the evening.

Celebrity judges were Bert Cutino, co-owner of the award-winning Sardine Factory in Monterey and Certified Executive Chef member of the American Academy of Chefs; Jeremiah Tower, owner and chef of Stars in San Francisco; Craig Claiborne, food editor emeritus of the New York Times and cookbook author; Betsy Balsley, food editor of the Los Angeles Times; Robert Bussinger, vice president and general manager at the Ventana Inn in Big Sur; Vicky Sebastiani, proprietor of Viansa Winery; Henry Lapuyade, owner of Marcel et Henri Charcuterie Francaise in San Francisco; Nick Niles, publisher, Food and Wine Magazine; Times; Lois Dwan, cookbook author and former restaurant critic for the Los Angeles Times; Tim Zagat, publisher of the Zagat Restaurant and Hotel Surveys.

Actress Elinor Donahue and her husband, producer Harry Ackerman, for many years celebrity chefs at the Gala, were honorary co-chairmen. Photographer-actor-director Cole Weston served as master of ceremonies.

The nautical theme of the 1990 Gala inspired the kichen designers to model their spaces after various ports of call.

This year, the designers included: Linda Lamb, owner of L.S. Lamb Design Group, and chairman of the committee; architect Joseph Rock, and landscape architect Scott Hall; Jerry Welling, senior events coordinator for the Monterey Conference Center and Guy Rodriguez; T. Scott Moore of T. Scott Moore Interior Design; Judith Lehman, Judith Lehman Interiors; Charleen Matoza, La Fille du Roi; Rudy Reate, R.I. Design Associates; Nancy McInnich, Nancy McInnich Interiors; Andrew Shafer and Kimberly Hewitt, Macy's Monterey; set designer Robert Benton, a four-time Oscar nominee most recently credited with the film, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?"; Nancy Schmitz and Frank Corn, Design Innovations; Linda Williams, Linda Williams-By Design.

OBITUARIES

Jean S. Paillard

Jean Saint-Ford Paillard, an author and equestrian, died Jan. 16 at his home in Pebble Beach. He was 76.

Mr. Paillard, who was born on Aug. 4, 1913, in Saint-Cyr, France, lived in Pebble Beach for 17 years. He was the author of Understanding Equitation and wrote the horse section of the French encyclopedia, La Rousse. He also wrote for Le Figaro, a newspaper in Paris.

He was commandant of the Cadre Noir of the French Cavalry and a riding master at Saumur.

Mr. Paillard was an Olympic competitor at the Helsinki, Stockholm and London games and rode on the gold-medal French equestrian team in London in 1948.

He is survived by his wife, Stephanie; a son, Gerard Saint-Fort Paillard of Paris; two daughters, Beatrix Astoux and Christine Kamenarovic, both of Paris; two sisters, Gine Offroy and Jean Rene Carriere, both of Paris; and two grandchildren.

At Mr. Paillard's request, no services took place. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast or to the Family Resource Center.

Georgann Kilby

Cremation took place under the direction of the Paul Mortuary, for Georgann Kilby, who died Jan. 30 at her home in Pebble Beach. She was 57.

Born June 11, 1932, in Montana, she had been a resident of Pebble Beach for the last 16 years.

She was a secretary and hostess for the American Management Association.

She was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and a volunteer worker for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

She is survived by a half brother, David Saller of Laughlin, Nev.; an uncle; and numerous cousins. Her husband, retired U.S. Army Col. Haywood Kilby, died in 1979.

Memorial services took place Feb. 5 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. Inurnment was scheduled to take place in Arlington National Cemetery, where her husband is buried.

Contributions in her memory may be sent to the Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation Program at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Oscar S. Maddox

Memorial services took place Jan. 22 at the Church of the Forest in Pebble Beach for Oscar Spivey Maddox, a retired naval officer, who died Jan. 18 at the Hospice of the Central Coast. He was 72.

Born Sept. 15, 1917, in Eatonton, Ga., Mr. Maddox lived on the Monterey Peninsula for more than 10 years. He lived for seven years in Pacific Grove, then moved to Pebble Beach.

He attended the University of Washington in Seattle and served with the U.S. Navy as a navigator and as executive officer on battleships and destroyers during World War II and the Korean War.

During that time, he served on the USS Mexico, the USS Monitor, the USS Buckley and the USS Piedmont. After World War II he went on a worldwide good will mission for the State Department with a task force of one aircraft carrier and two destroyers.

Mr. Maddox retired in 1954 after 20 years of service and opened an electrical contracting business, Walsh-Maddox Electrical Contractors, in Merced. In 1972 he retired from the business and turned to golfing.

He served as a committeeman, Red Coat, for the Northern California Golf Association for several years, helping run tournaments. He was named Red Coat of the Year in 1989. He also worked for many years on the Spalding, Crosby and AT&T, U.S. Open and Nabisco tournaments.

He started a hospitality tent called the Shelter at the driving range for the AT&T.

He was a member of the Retired Officers Association, the Rancho Canada Mens Golf Club, the Northern California Golf Association and the Fort Ord Mens Golf Club. He was a past president of the Merced Golf and Country Club.

He is survived by his wife, Opal; stepsons, Gilbert Blank of Pebble Beach and Richard Blank of Anderson; a brother, Harold of Lakeland, Fla,; sisters, Edna Earle Dorris of Naples, Fla., and Betty Lou Harsaw of Orlando, Fla.; and three grandchildren.

Inurnment with full military honors took place at the Golden Gate National Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Central Coast.

Dorothy Anderson

Dorothy Dawson Anderson of Carmel, died Jan. 16 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 82.

Mrs. Anderson, who was born Jan. 20, 1907, in Salt Lake City, Utah, lived in Carmel for 23 years. At one time, she worked as private secretary for Holywood producer David Selznick and movie director George Cukor. She was also a homemaker.

She was a member of the Carmel Foundation, the Los Angeles Country Club, the Beach Club of Santa Monica and the Thunderbird Country club of Palm Springs.

She is survived by her husband, Raymond; a daughter, Jeanne Moffatt of Brentwood; two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

No services were scheduled to take place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Glen O. Gregg

Private cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Glen O. Gregg of Del Mesa Carmel, a retired life insurance company executive, who died Jan. 23 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 74.

Born Jan. 31, 1915, in Leedey, Okla., he was a retired vice president of Sovereign Life Insurance Co. in Santa Barbara. He moved to the peninsula from Santa Barbara 10 years ago.

Mr. Gregg is survived by his wife, Bette; a son James of Pebble Beach; two daughters, Julie of Pacific Grove and Ann Ostenso of Carmel; a sister, Ora-Jo Spencer of Torrance; and four grandchildren.

No services were planned. Ashes were scattered at sea off Point Lobos.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel.

Marion Eley

Private cremation took place under the direction of Mission Mortuary, for Marion Eley of Carmel, a retired school teacher, who died Jan. 24 at Agape Residential Care Home in Carmel. She was 96.

Born Aug. 23, 1893, in San Jose, she graduated from San Jose Normal School, the present San Jose State University, in 1914, and taught in a one-room schoolhouse in Gustine from 1915 through 1922.

She then taught in San Jose schools from 1923 until retiring in 1957, when she moved to Carmel.

Miss Eley, known as Aggie, was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteers Service, Monterey Peninsula History and Art Association, Carmel Women's Club, Carmel Foundation, the Retired Teachers Association's Monterey and San Jose divisions and the San Jose State Alumni Association.

She is survived by two grandnephews, a grandniece, nine great-grandnieces and nephews, two great-great-grandnephews and a great-great grandniece.

At her request, no services took place. Her ashes were scattered at sea.

Contributions in her memory may be sent to the Carmel Foundation.

Thomas B. Kimball

Private cremation took place under the direction of the California Cremation Society, for Thomas B. Kimball of Carmel Valley Manor, a retired oil company executive, who died Jan. 24 at the Manor's medical center. He was 90.

Born in Hayward on Dec. 2, 1899, Mr. Kimball was a member of a pioneer California family — his grandfather, Dr. Edwin Kimball, arrived in San Francisco during the Gold Rush.

Mr. Kimball attended the University of California at Berkeley on a Cowell scholarship and graduated with a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering.

He began his career as a process technician at the Shell Oil Co.'s Martinez refinery, later joining the Sinclair Oil Corp. as head of its division of refinery process engineering and development, a field in which he held many patents.

During World War II, Mr. Kimball was transferred to Sinclair's Chicago office to coordinate its efforts in aviation gasoline and synthetic-rubber production, and served on several War Production Board committees involving those products.

Mr. Kimball became a director of the corporation in 1958, serving as vice president of operations.

He was a director of the American Petroleum Institute, National Petroleum Refineries Association, Union League Club, Economics Club and Newcommen Society of New York City.

Mr. Kimball retired to Santa Barbara in 1965 and moved to the peninsula 20 years ago.

He is survived by his wife of 66 years, Gertrude; a son, Dr. Kent G. Kimball of Oakland; two grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

The family prefers that any memorial contributions be sent to the Carmel Valley Manor Scholarship Fund.

Lillian F. Griffith

A wake service took place Jan. 28 at the Paul Mortuary Chapel, and a Mass of Christian burial was celebrated Jan. 29 at St. Angela's Catholic Church, for Lillian Florer Griffith of Pacific Grove, who died Jan. 26 at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital. She was 93.

Born May 16, 1896, in Dallas, Texas, she was a soloist with the Dallas Light Opera Company for 10 years and had lived on the Monterey Peninsula for the past 3 1/2 years.

She was a member of St. Angela's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Griffith is survived by a daughter, June Holder of Pacific Grove, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Burial took place Jan. 31 at Oakhill Cemetery in Escondido.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the St. Vincent de Paul Society in care of St. Angela's Church.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Pack up your troubles and smile, smile, smile

Feb. 11, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

One of the most popular of human pastimes is "worrying." Men seem to delight in remaining in a perpetual state of anxiety. They convince themselves that there is a certain majesty and glory in cherishing and cousining gloom.

"Worry is the interest paid by those who borrow trouble."

In the fifth century B.C., the Greek slave Aesop of Samose in his fable of the County and City mouse wrote: "A crust of bread eaten in peace is better than a banquet partaken in anxiety."

We have often heard Robert Jones Burdette's observation, "There are two days in the week left sacredly free from fear and apprehension. One of these days is yesterday and the other I do not worry about is tomorrow. It isn't the experiences of today that drive men mad. It is the remorse for something that happened yesterday and the dread of what tomorrow may disclose."

Corum Jackson, one of the founders and charter members of this club, had a congenital dislike for singing at meetings. He would not have tolerated this World War I song of 1915.

"What's the use of worrying, it never was worthwhile. So pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile!"

We hope you are not rolling in your grave, Corum!

Oh Lord, your devoted servant Robert Louis Bulfuer Stevenson observed that "no duty we so much underrate is the duty of being happy."

Oh Lord, grant that we may serve you with a happy heart and a cheerful disposition; with complete childlike trust in Your divine providence which is another way of saying we know You care. Help us to keep our sense of humor, a truly God-given gift, which infallibly banishes gloom.

Finally, Frank Moore Colby said: "Men will confess to treason, murder, arson, false teeth and even a wig. However, how many of them will own up to a lack of humor?" Can we blame them? Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

A new toll-free phone system has opened up instant communcations with the Socail Security Administration. The number is 800-234-5772, and the system operates 24 hours a day, every day. A computer routes calls to service centers whose lines are not tied up. Between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., weekdays, Social Security representatives answer questions or record new information from callers. At other times, a recording system operates. By listening to instructions and pressing specified touch-tone buttons, callers can report change of address or other information, or request a return call on the next business day. The new system allows almost all business with Socal Security t be conducted by phone. Appointments still can be made for in-person sessions at Social Security offices.

Cannery Row gallery showcases artwork by Jay Campbell

PACIFIC GROVE artist Jay Campbell will be honored Friday, Feb. 9, at an opening of his one-man show at the Paul Masson Gallery and Museum above the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row.

The opening will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The show will run through March 9.

Campbell is a graduate of Vesper George School of Art in Boston and Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. He has taught at the Butera School of Art in Boston and has lectured at art schools throughout the Boston area.

He is a past first-prize winner of the Artist Guild's Juried Show, held at the Society of Illustrators in New York City.

Campbell has had a number of one-man shows on the Monterey Peninsula. He most recently exhibited his work at a joint show at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Carmel this past October.

He has been painting in California since the late 1970s and strives to bring the vision of an East Coast artist to typical local scenes.

He was one of 48 artists selected by the Monterey County Arts Commission last summer to take part in the Cannery Row Mural supervised by Bruce Arris.

Campbell's artwork has appeared in a number of local publications, including Pacific Monthly, Monterey Life, the Monterey Herald, and the Carmel Pine Cone. His "Hometown Sketches" is a regular feature of the Pacific Grove Monarch.

He also illustrates children books, most recently Hump-Free the Wrongway Whale, Hump-Free Visits the Vancouver Expo, and Hump-Free Heads for Hawaii, all written by Henry Eisemann.

PACIFIC GROVE artist Jay Campbell, a graduate of Vesper George School of Art in Boston and Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, will be honored with a one-man show at the Paul Masson Gallery and Museum on Cannery Row. A reeeption is set 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. The exhibit continues through March 9.

Monterey dances to samba beat for Carnaval 1990

CARNAVAL MONTEREY '90, a night filled with the sounds, color, tradition and spirit of a carnaval in Rio de Janeiro, arrives Saturday, Feb. 10. Carmel Classic Arts Festivals presents this multi-faceted celebration, which is also a benefit for the Rainforest Action Network.

The Monterey Conference Center, Del Monte and Alvarado in Monterey, provides the setting for Carnaval Monterey '90. The featured band is Batucaje, a premiere West Coast exponent of Brazilian rhythms, music and dance. Batucaje's members are well known to Monterey Jazz Festival audiences for their blend of Brazilian music, movement and theatrical ritual.

Also sharing the stage at Carnaval Monterey '90 will be the Congolese drum and dance show featuring Malonga. Returning by popular demand will be the fiery bateria Samba Cruz, a Santa Cruz-based percussion band fashioned after the samba schools in Rio. Led by director Dennis Boughton, Samba Cruz features singer Ivson Lins from Brazil and a traditional procession playing Batucada rhythms.

Singles and couples are encouraged to join this world of myth and fantasy and shed everyday worries. Come in mask, full costume, or come as you are, but come prepared to dance. There will be a floor show, costume contest, door prizes, no-host bar and valet parking. Carnaval hours are 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Every year in South America, carnaval is celebrated as a pre-Lenten festival that precedes the six-week period of fasting and prayer before Easter. Each culture, each country has its own special and distinctive carnaval style that has evolved into a display of colors and sound. Nowhere is this event embraced more than in Brazil's Rio de Janeiro, where glittering costumes, fireworks and flower-laden floats fill the streets to the beat of tropical drums and the samba.

Tickets to Carnaval Monterey '90 are $20, and proceeds will benefit the Rainforest Action Network.

Tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, as well as the following costume stores: The Clothes Closet, Monterey; the Pink Flamingo, Salinas; Costume Bazaar, Pacific Grove; and Closet Capers, Santa Cruz.

For additional information, call 373-3250 or 646-9487.

COLORFUL COSTUMES and tropical rhythms will fill the night when Carnaval Monterey '90 arrives at the Monterey Conference Center on Saturday, Feb. 10. The celebration is a benefit for the Rainforest Action Network, and is set 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. For reservations, call 649-5561.

Carl Jung enthusiasts meet in Carmel

CONNECTING WITH the deeper soul aspects of personality is the focus of an evening-and-day-long workshop titled "Childhood Dreams, Memories and Mythic Patterns" to be held Friday, Feb. 9, at 7 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 10, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, both events will be led by Grady Gray, Ph.D., a student of Jung's psychology and a founding member of the American Branch, Research Society for Process-oriented Psychology.

He states that "When we pay attention to the signals coming from our dreams, relationship conflicts and body symptoms, we attain a heightened awareness of the forces and influences from our larger personality, which Jung called the Self. Processwork is an elaboration and refinement of Jung's daring and pioneering work. In this weekend we will honor those more elemental and mythic influences in our life by examining dreams of childhood, earliest memories, family traditions and behaviors, chronic body symptoms, body movement patterns."

Registrations are open to everyone for either one or both events, and may be made at the door. A modest donation is suggested to help defray expenses (Dr. Gray is travelling from Bainbridge Island, Washington); but partial scholarships are available on request.

The Friends of C.G. Jung is an informal collection of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for the seminal ideas of the Swiss physician/philosopher. Regular meetings such as the one that is herein announced help them make practical applications of those ideas in their everyday lives.

ON STAGE

Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You

Christopher Durang's satire, Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You, will be staged for three performances only in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9-11. The comedy is directed by Stephen Moorer and produced by the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Mindy Stock reprises her role as the "slightly-round-the-bend" Roman Catholic nun who delivers charmingly ghoulish lectures at a parochial school. Offering more than a diatribe against the Church, Sister Mary represents a character who conveys the ways any large organization spreads its dogmatic views. The show also features Dorian Ellis, Mickie Mosley Moorer, Kevin Hanstick, Jim Sutty and Luke Stock.

Tickets are $10 general; $8 for students, seniors and the military and two for $12 to MPC and GroveMont season ticket holders. Proceeds will benefit the Artists Scholarship Funds of Monterey Bay TheatreFest and the MPC Drama Department.

For reservations, call 649-5561.

Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will?

The GroveMont Theater continues its "Season of New Plays" with Del Shores' southern comedy, Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will?

GroveMont founder and artistic director Stephen Moorer directs the comedy. The cast includes Len Perry, Kathy Deskin-Jacobs, Mark Shilstone, Sandy Williams, Denise Clifford, Christina Perez, Jeannie Wooster and Craig Dunbar.

Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will? will have final performances at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 8-10.

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey. Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime, with a variety of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

Tickets on Thursday are $8.50 general and $7 for students, seniors and military. Tickets on Friday and Saturday are $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and military. Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call GroveMont at 649-6852.

Holy terror

MINDY STOCK recreates her role as Sister Mary in the farcical Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You. The production will be staged for one weekend only at Monterey Peninsula College.

Tartuffe

Continuing a performance season populated by saints and sinners, the Staff Players Repertory Company presents Moliere's Tartuffe. Banned by royal decree from the French stage following its first performance, Moliere's 17th century farce punctures religious hypocrisy.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs Tartuffe. The cast includes Norman Stottmeister in the title role; Jeff Heyer as the wealthy Orgon; Marianne Schaupp as his wife, Elmire; Elizabeth Klaas as the saucy Dorine; Henry Guevara as the hot-blooded Damis; Jason Bond as the calming Cleante; Jessica Stevenson and John Farmanesh as the star-crossed Mariane and Valere; Donelia Dooley as the imperious Madame Pernelle; and James Walters as the enigmatic Royal.

Tartuffe will play at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theater at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays until Feb. 17. The theater is located at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Admission is $9 general, $7 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call 624-1531.

The Olio Revue

The traditional offering of 19th century song, dance and skits, The Olio Revue, continues at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Ballet troupe takes inspiration from scriptures

BALLET MAGNIFICAT, a dance troupe that takes its themes from the gospel, will perform Monday, Feb. 12 in the Pacific Grove High School Gymnasium. The performance, which is sponsored by Peninsula Presbyterian Church, will begin at 7 p.m. and features several works from the company's repertoire. Admission is free, but free-will offerings will be accepted.

Ballet Magnificat was founded in 1986 by Kathy Thibodeaux, who was the silver medalist at the II USA International Ballet Competition. The troupe was recently in Virginia Beach, Virginia with the 700 Club to tape one of their ballets called "Joy" to the music of Steve Green.

Their repertoire also includes other ballets to the music of Kemper Crabb, Karla Worley, Steve Fry, John Michael Talbot, and one of their most popular pieces, "Sandi-Songs", to the music of Sandi Patti. In three cross-country tours, the company has performed almost three hundred times in places as varied as Hawaii, Washington, D.C. and Toronto, Canada and has received inquiries from Mexico, Asia, Europe and Australia. This ministry has recently opened a full-time ballet school in Jackson, MS with an enrollment of over 200 students.

Contact Mark Fairbrother at 375-5510 for more information.

Two-day 'A Winter Interlude' features legions of local talent

LOCAL PERFORMERS talented in several media have joined together to create "A Winter Interlude — Continuing the Vision." This interlude will feature entertainment ranging from mime, poetry and music to modern dance. The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 9-10, at the Robert Down Elementary School Auditorium, 485 Pine Ave., Pacific Grove.

The program is produced by Hinton Harrison, who will also appear in the guise of a clown/mime. Other local artists scheduled to appear are pianist Holland Garcia; recording artist and folksinger Alisa Fineman; modern dancers Neta Cobb, Diane Tingey and Oona Hull; fine artist Karen Gelf, the Vegetarian Alternative Band, and more.

The evening will also include a showing of "Walking the Vision," a multi-media program.

Tickets are $5 per person. Patrons are encouraged to buy extra tickets for children or adult athletes from the Monterey County Special Olympics.

Tickets can be reserved through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

Teatro Campesino stages original comedy

THE DYNAMIC theater company which was born during the travails of the Delano Grape Strike of 1965 and has grown to an impressive maturity in nearby San Juan Bautista over the past 20 years, opens its 24th season with an original comedy that is both highly entertaining and deeply thought-provoking.

Written and directed by Luis Valdez, El Teatro Campesino's founder and artistic director, I Don't Have to Show You No Stinking Badges takes its title from the defiant line first spoken by Alfonso Bedoya to Humphrey Bogart in John Huston's classic film, Treasure of the Sierra Madre, a line which has become as recognizable in our popular culture as Mae West's immortal "C'mon up and see me sometime," or Bette Davis's "What a dump!"

Badges was first staged in 1986 at the Los Angeles Theater Center, where it received critical acclaim, running successfully for five months. Subsequently the production was invited to Burt Reynold's Jupiter Theater in Florida, then on to San Diego Rep in 1987 where it also played to sold-out houses. The present production, according to Andres Gutierrez, press director for El Teatro, is a "tune-up — for a national tour."

Buddy and Connie Silva (Mike Moroff and Alma Martinez) have cut out a permanent niche for themselves in Ronald Reagan's 1980s Middle America. They live in the comfortable, middle-class neighborhood of Monterey Park, a suburb of Los Angeles "on the distant fringe of Hollywood." Their only daughter, Lucy, is a medical doctor, their only son, Sonny (Kinan Valdez), an honor student studying pre-law at Harvard.

Freed from the anxieties connected with scrabbling for basic economic survival, the bright, high-spirited couple await eagerly each morning for calls from their agent hiring them for gigs as Mexican extras in films and on TV. Buddy, who has made a 35-year career playing bandidos and Mexican gardeners, still harbors dreams of eventually being accepted as the first Hispanic James Bond.

Connie, who joined her husband as a professional performer after their children were grown, teases Buddy that she has been getting more calls than him recently, although she too is locked into stereotypical Mexican roles. The couple's relatively idyllic existence is thrown into upheaval with the unexpected return of Sonny from Harvard, who announces he has decided to quit his law studies to pursue a career directing avant garde and socially significant movies, a Mexican-American Woody Allen.

Sonny's news is met with initial dismay by his disappointed parents, especially when it becomes clear that a cute Japanese-American dancer, Anita, (Marion Yue), has given their underage Sonny more than a ride in her Peugeot while crossing the country.

Buddy and Connie, being resilient, doting American parents, at first go along with Sonny's whim, even working up some hilarious musical duets for his first film directing venture. What had been rolling along as a predictable, family sit-com suddenly turns dark, however, when violent forces inside Sonny threaten to push the family towards unexpected tragedy.

What Luis Valdez seems to be saying here is that the price minority Americans pay to fit into the white, Anglo-Saxon establishment — the suburban houses, the swimming pools, the expensive cars, the Ivy League educations — are paid for in a corrosive inner alienation from their original cultures and self-identities. That his play ends on an upbeat note is — as he clearly tells us — a conscious concession to the American need to be protected from this dark side of the American Dream. Just like in the movies.

Valdez has selected a wonderfully talented and high-spirited cast to work with. The incredible physicality and psychological versatility exhibited by this experienced, professional quartet assures a production that is fast-paced, constantly entertaining and packed with laughs.

Mike Moroff's "Buddy" bubbles over with wacky daydreams and colorful fantasies. His athletic acting out of famous roles he covets drew quick recognition and laughter from the evening's audience. With an extensive background in both Mexican and American cinema, Mr. Moroff has still found time in his life to direct and perform in his own "Made in the USA" band and compete in the sport of team roping.

Alma Martinez as "Connie" is alternatively sexy and mischevious, practical and fiercely maternal.

Kinan Valdez as "Sonny" offers an in-depth characterization, light-hearted and boyish one moment, exploding in pent-up fury the next. His transformation from spoiled college kid to an on-the-edge L.A. cholo was brilliant. "Sonny", according to material supplied by El Teatro, resembles the true life Jose Luis Razo, a Hispanic straight-A student and athlete from La Habra, who resigned from Harvard and turned himself into authorities as the perpetrator of a string of armed robberies. Art imitates Life imitates Art.

Finally, Marion Yue — born in Tokyo of Japanese-American ancestry — gives us in "Anita" an accessible, disturbed young woman, troubled by her own inner demons which friendship with Sonny helps her identify as her own alienation from ethnic roots.

There is a motto familiar around these parts which has been aired for years by Gilroy auto dealers: "Drive a little, save a lot." For those theater-goers of the Monterey area who relish top-notch live theater, let me indulge in a bit of parody. "Drive a little, experience a lot" by driving over to the Old Mission Pueblo of San Juan Bautista to catch the current production of I Don't Have to Show You No Stinking Badges, running through March 4, weekends, at El Teatro's theater, 705 4th Street. For information and reservations, (the show has been selling out), call 623-2444. Tell em Bogie sent you.

Got it live

IS LIVE music making a long-awaited comeback on the Monterey Peninsula?

Not since they heyday of the peninsula's live music scene in the early '80s has the area seen so much good live music — and the enthusiastic crowds to go with it.

A few weeks ago more than 400 blues lovers packed The Club in Monterey to hear good ole boy Elvin Bishop jam with locals Terry Hanck and the Soul Rockers, Robert Cray keyboardist Jimmy Pugh, and members of the Broadway Band in what could become a regular showcase for blues and R&B, sort of a Monterey Peninsula version of Slim's nightclub in San Francisco. The all-star band pushed the edge of the envelope in that performance, going well beyond the 1 a.m. cutoff time due to the overwhelming audience response.

The next such night, I'm told by one of the organizers, music promoter Steve Vagnini, is another jam featuring Hanck et al and Bay Area blues musicians Roy Rogers and Norton Buffalo come March 1. Rogers is coming off a stint with John Lee Hooker (who opened a special pay-per-view show for the Rolling Stones' recent "Steel Wheels" tour), producing and playing on Hooker's hot new album The Healer, and Buffalo is coming off a hot set with Steve Miller during the recent earthquake benefit concerts.

And if you were lucky enough to get a ticket for The Club last Thursday, you and 500 others would have seen Dennis Quaid and the Mystics, with Huey Lewis sitting in on harp and vocals on one song. Quaid, although sounding a bit hoarse, brought a crack band featuring Bonnie Raitt's lead guitarist and bassist, and generally gave the audience (probably two-thirds women), something to scream about.

In addition to all that, Cannery Row's never-a-cover Doc Rickett's continues to bring in excellent young bands (case in point: the New Champions with the always-amazing Thom Ayers on guitar), and surprise, surprise, Cancun in The Crossroads shopping center, where local bands continue to pack 'em in. Lover & Strangers (with a new bass player, Will Return, formerly of The Believers), played to a near-capacity

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

STRONG LEADERS — Trombone adepts Kevin Eubanks (left) and Steve Turre fronted a brilliant group at Kuumbwa Jazz Center. And jazz photographer Will Wallace was on hand to capture this portrait.

Bloom and sizzle

NEWSBREAK: Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra, which plays on Monday nights at Mission Ranch Barn, has a new conductor. He's Biff Smith, excellent pianist and composer who teaches English at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Biff's appointment was announced by MPJO spokesperson Dawn Morman. She said former conductor Bow Williams chose to pursue other professional opportunities, but promised that he'd contribute original writing and guest conductor shots to the orchestra in future.

"We now have our non-profit papers," Ms. Morman told this column. "Biff's an experienced jazz clinician. His placement with us emphasizes our commitment to education — taking this music to youngsters."

MPJO co-administrators Eric Tonn and Bill Allison revealed a couple of weeks ago that this new program would start in Pacific Grove elementary schools.

BRAZIL NIGHT: Carnaval Monterey '90 will bloom and sizzle like tropical rainbows on Saturday evening (2/10). Carmel Classic Arts Festivals presents the annual costume ball in Monterey Conference Center. Kicks off at eight o'clock. Wild garb, masks, normal party styles — call your own fashion shot.

The colorful occasion's music will be made by Batucaje (Brazilian troupe which opened last year's Monterey Jazz Festival), Congolese drummers and dancers under the name Malonga, Samba Cruz bateria (drum corps). Dancing of course, costume contest, cabaret format, door prizes, no-host bar, raffle grand prize reported as a trip to Rio. Rainforest Action Network again will distribute information about its work and share whatever profit ensues.

Admission's $20 apiece. Advance treatment via Center Stage Ticketing, Clothes Closet (Monterey), Costume Bazaar (Pacific Grove). Info: 373-3250.

PUBLIC RADIO outposts have come up with special, jazz-based touches for this Black History Month.

KAZU Program Director Suzanne Dobkin says her shop offers three-minute biographical snips about the venerable bassist and important jazz photographer Milt Hinton. Produced by WRTI Radio of Temple University, these segments run each weekday afternoon (right about 4:30) throughout the month.

KUSP in Santa Cruz slates an American Jazz Radio Festival show on Jelly Roll Morton (10-midnight on 2/14). The same time slot's allocated for locally-produced specials on Bud Powell (2/22 with Pete Fallico hosting) and Benny Carter (2/27 and Larry Blood at the helm).

And one KUSP Sunday Night Special (9-11 on 2/18) will resurrect a 1963 address by the late Malcolm X. He's still one of the most misunderstood — and deeply pertinent — figures in this nation's spiritual history. It was after he began celebrating multiracial unity that Malcolm got blown away by unidentified gunmen. Leon Allen hosts.

THIS SUMMER'S Monterey Bay Blues Festival will compile a monster lineup and some tasty surprises. That conclusion comes from meeting with the Talent Advisory Committee, established to help cook up a true blues flavor June 23-24.

Obviously I can't name names before the fest board has sifted through well-researched talent nominations and obtained some signatures on contracts. What can be noted right now: the roster of potential acts contains no dogs or fillers. Advisory panel members have been meeting on Saturdays at Oldemeyer Center in Seaside; currently we're balancing hard costs (obtained from various agents) and monies available.

The committee: Lewis Jackson (chair), Mac McDonald, Mary Ellen Harris, Will Wallace, Mike Eckstrom, Franklin Washington, Julie Paissant, Ron Daniels, Lee Durley, Matt Arnett, Gus Lewis, yours truly.

We'll send a good will and fact-gathering delegation to the Bay Area Blues Hall of Fame and Awards Show on Saturday night (2/10) at Oakland's Calvin Simmons Theater. Will, Ron, this writer, perhaps others. If you're into blues and real bargains, why not consider a trip of your own?

Entertainers there and then: Jimmy Witherspoon, Delta blues singer Roy Rogers, R&B vocalists Cool Papa and Sugar Pie DeSanto, Bay Area Blues Society Orchestra. Ducats $10 per. Then comes a post-awards ball in the adjacent Kaiser Arena with guitarist Johnny Heartsman, Bobby Reed and his Surprize Band, vocalist Faye Marshall. This's $10 too — or $5 if you've a stub from the first bash. Ticketmaster handles both. That latter event honors the memory of Slim Jenkins' Place, historic West Oakland club which this year wins a Hall of Fame slot.

SIGHT BITES: Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club spotlights the fusion band Higher Feelings on Thursday evening (2/8). Then: Terry Hanck and his Soul Rockers (2/9-10), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (2/11), Rob Lautz plus Tom Bockhold (2/12), Jack and Ed Show (2/13), Flashpoint (2/14).

• Vocalist Madeline Eastman got a real compliment. Said a cocktail waitress at Monterey Bay Club: "When she's singing, I don't want to run the blender. I always feel like that'd be interrupting a very private moment."

• Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz brings in longtime word artist Gil Scott-Heron on Monday night (2/12). It's an appropriate Black History Month booking: his songs gain inspiration from Lady Day, poet Langston Hughes, Coltrane — and he was an incisive rapper long before rap emerged as a popular form. More, he's a cultural revolutionary with a sense of humor. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $12 per ticket; Center Stage Agency.

• Blues, Cajun sounds, country, mellow ballads, rockers. Singer John Prejean and friends get together on an American Lung Association benefit Sunday night (2/11) at Monterey Conference Center. Performers like Lauri Hofer, Vickie Scardina, Terry Hanck, Roger Eddy, Richard Bryant, on and on. Costs: $12 at the door, $10 advance, $5 teens. Some outlets: Abinante Music, Center Stage, Do Re Mi, Running Iron, Valley Video, Carmel Music. Call 624-8045 for more details.

• Kuumbwa Director Tim Jackson's also a working jazz reedman. Tim concentrated on flute when his band Real Time played Monterey Bay Club. It's a tight crew that features straight-ahead tunes, pretty Latin things, fusion, several originals. The handling of Les McCann's Samia was especially pleasing. All the building blocks are there — they could give a bit more thought to programming for rhythmic variation. Elliott Lewis (keyboards), Rick Alegria (trap set), Scott Vomvolakis (imaginative percussion), Scott McKenna (electric bass).

• Don't forget the storyteller Awele Makeba at Monterey Public Library's Community Room on Thursday night (2/8). Reservations required (646-3930) and no late seating. Ages 16 and up invited to this freebie.

• For three decades he was a well-known Manhattan street musician, jam session participant, sideman. In fact, media types saw him as symbolizing "the jazz underground." Alto saxist Clarence Sharpe has died there. Throat cancer. Age 53. Clarence also taught improvisation at the Lower East Side's University of the Streets.

• Columbia has issued Best of the Big Bands — eight digitally remastered volumes. Swing classics by Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Cab Calloway, Les Brown, Glenn Gray, Sammy Kaye, Les and Larry Elgart.

Society outlines art of the Gandhara region

Wallace Thompson will present a slide-illustrated talk on "The Art of Gandhara" at the Tuesday, Feb. 13 gathering of the Oriental Art Society of the Monterey Peninsula. A "social opportunity" with light refreshments will begin at 7:30 p.m., to be followed by the program at 8 p.m. The group meets in the community room of the Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel.

Ancient Gandhara was the northwest corner of the land which became India, now Pakistan. With Soviet involvement in Afghanistan the region has continued important, even as it was in earlier times. Gandhara lies between Kabul on the west and Rawalpindi on the east, just north of the Khyber Pass. It is between the Indus and Swat Rivers and lies astride the classic invasion route from Eur-Asia and the Iranian Plateau into the fertile Punjab and the entire Indian Subcontinent.

Countless invasions have come this way since Alexander in 327 BC. Some have conquered, some have established trading cities and military garrisons. But with each have come elements of art and the technologies of their day. Greek influences were very strong and persistent. It is thought that their sculptural ideas and techniques eventually resulted in the first of the Buddha statues which went from Gandhara into Afghanistan and on into China by way of Dunhuang on the Silk Road. This was the introduction of Buddhism into China and is thought to have occurred about 87 A.D.

Thompson is an internationally known novelist and book editor for the Aspen Institute. He speaks six languages fluently and has a working knowledge of two others. He attended both the University of Geneva and the University of Mexico after receiving his A.B. in International Relations from Stanford.

He served in the U.S. Department of State for two years in Tripoli, Libya, and later worked for the Asia Foundation for 8 years. Following that experience he worked five more for another San Francisco based foundation interested in various Asian cultures. He has also served as an advisor to The Asia Society in New York.

Thompson became interested in Gandharan art during the almost four years he and his family spent in Pakistan. He and his wife collected a number of Gandharan works of art, both in stone and terracotta, during his tour of duty in Karachi and Lahore for The Asia Foundation. His interest was renewed in recent years when the Boston Museum of Fine Arts borrowed two of his Gandhara pieces, plus 28 other pieces of art from the same region, for study and display.

The public is invited to this program. There will be no charge.

Monterey Opera rehearses

The Monterey Opera Association, Inc., has begun rehearsals for its next production, Dido and Aenaeus. Choral openings remain for this production, to be staged in mid-June.

Interested singers are invited to join rehearsals, set 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays in Room M-10 at Monterey Peninsula College. For details, call 899-8494.

Yoga school conducts open house at Sunset Center

On Saturday, Feb. 10, the Tri-Yoga Academy of Carmel will hold an open house marking its first anniversary.

Past, present, and potential students are invited to join in the celebration, which includes free yoga classes in the morning, a free yoga dance workshop in the afternoon, and a vegetarian potluck feast in the evening.

The academy is located in Room 17 (cottage on 10th Avenue) at Sunset Center, Carmel.

Festivities begin with a Tri-Yoga beginners class at 9 a.m. followed by a class for intermediates at 10:30 a.m. Staff members will be available to answer questions between events.

"Introduction to Tri-Yoga Dance" is the theme of the afternoon workshop, which meets 2 to 4:30 p.m. and is open to students at all levels of yoga experience.

The potluck is a vegan feast — no animal products are used in the dishes. It begins at 5:30 p.m. Participants are urged to call an instructor to coordinate contributions.

For additional information, please call 624-4949 or 625-4430.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: BETH KNOX, aka BETH TRITCHKOV, aka BETH KNOX TRITCHKOV

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Beth Knox, aka Beth Tritchkov, aka Beth Knox Tritchkov.

A PETITION has been filed by THELMA BECK in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that Thelma Beck be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on March 2, 1990 at 9:30 AM.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hering date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Petitioner: Thelma Beck, 260 Hollywood Boulevard, Oxnard, CA 93035.

ORDINANCE 89-4

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MID CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT MODIFYING THE DISTRICT'S "PERSONNEL RULES AND REGULATIONS".

BE IT ORDERED by the Board of Directors of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District of Monterey County, California that the below sections adding to the District's "Personnel Rules and Regulations" are hereby ordered.

SECTION 1. ADDITIONS TO THE PERSONNEL RULES AND REGULATIONS

(a) Rule 15 is hereby added to read as follows:

"RULE 15.0 EMPLOYEES' ORGANIZATION

15.1 Purpose: It is the purpose of these rules to promote the improvement of personnel management and employer-employee relations within the District by providing a uniform basis for recognizing the right of the District employees to join organizations of their own choice and be represented by such organizations in their relationships with the District. Chapter 3500 et.al. of the Government Code of the State of California shall apply as modified below.

15.2 Definitions: Chapter 3501 of the Government Code of the State of California shall apply to this chapter.

15.3 Bargaining Groups: There shall be three (3) bargaining groups within the District. No member of one bargaining group may be a member of another group, or represent another group. The groups are:

a. General employees group. This group shall represent all uniformed employees holding the rank of firefighter through Captain; Except the Fire Marshal, Operations Officer and the Maintenance and Supply Officer.

b. Confidential Group. This group shall include secretaries, and the District Administrative Officer.

c. Management Group. This group shall represent all uniformed employees holding the rank above Captain; Including the Fire Marshal, Operations Officer and the Maintenance and Supply Officer; But not to include the Fire Chief.

15.4 Agency Shop: The District bargaining groups shall not be an "Agency Shop" as defined in section 3502.5 of the Government Code of the State of California.

15.5 Bargaining Group recognition: Upon the receipt of a request for exclusive recognition, the District may require the Fire Chief to hold an election of the proposed members that will make up the bargaining group to verify that this group does in fact represent those employees of the District effected.

15.6 Bargaining Group By-Laws: A bargaining group requesting exclusive recognition shall furnish a complete set of by-laws as to how officers are elected, dues are collected and spent, requirements for membership, the purpose for which the group is formed, the current list of officers, and a official address of the group.

15.7 Exclusive recognition: The District by resolution shall grant exclusive recognition to a bargaining group. Exclusive recognition of employee organizations recognized as majority representatives pursuant to a vote of the employees may be revoked by a majority vote of the employees only after a period of not less than twelve (12) months following the date of such recognition. The District shall not unreasonably withhold recognition of a employee organization as set forth in section 15.3 above. Bargaining groups of the District shall not use the District's letter head nor present themselves in any manner as being the District or representing the district.

15.8 Mediation of Disputes: Mediation of Disputes shall be carried out as set forth in Rule 12.3 of this ordinance.

15.9 Volunteers: Volunteer members of the District shall not be a member of any bargaining group.

SECTION II. REPEAL OF CONFLICTING ORDINANCE.

All former ordinances or parts thereof, conflicting or inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

SECTION III. VALIDITY.

The Board of Directors hereby declares that should any section paragraph, sentence or word of this ordinance hereby adopted be declared for any reason to be invalid, it is the intent of the Board of Directors that it would have passed all other portions of this ordinance independent of the elimination herefrom of any such portion as may be declared invalid.

SECTION IV. DATE OF EFFECT.

This ordinance shall take effect and be in force thirty (30) days from and after its approval as required by law.

PASSED AND ADOPTED AT A REGULAR SCHEDULED MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE MID CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT, COUNTY OF MONTEREY, STATE OF CALIFORNIA ON THIS 24th DAY OF January, 1990 BY THE FOLLOWING VOTE:

Are your attitudes about mental illness still in the dark ages?

Our notions about mental illness have a long, dark history. Sadly, age-old fears keep us from seeing mental illness for what it really is: a distressing medical disease. A disease that can be treated. For an informative booklet about mental illness, contact the American Mental Health Fund.

French films screened in Monterey

Upcoming offerings of the Monterey Institute International Film Series include Madame Rosa and Sundays and Cybele.

Simone Signoret stars in the 1977 release, Madame Rosa, to be presented Friday through Sunday, Feb. 9-11. Academy Award-winner for best foreign film, Madame Rosa is the story of a former prostitute living in the slums of Paris who now helps the children of prostitutes survive by caring for them.

The Wednesday, Feb. 14 film offering is Sundays and Cybele. This 1962 production also won the Academy Award for Best Foreign Film. It is the story of a pilot who returns to Paris after the Indo-Chinese war suffering from loss of memory. He meets a young girl in a playground and they establish a delicate and enriching relationship.

Both films will be shown in French with subitles and begin at 8:15 p.m. in S.F.B. Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $4 general, $3 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 626-1730.

Be on the lookout for whales

Throughout the whale migration season, members of the American Cetacean Society join docents leading Sunday morning tours of the Point Sur Lightstation, 19 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1.

Visitors should meet 9:30 a.m. at the gate, about one-quarter mile north of the Naval Facility. The tours last approximately two and one-half hours. Visitors should wear good walking shoes and windbreaker. For safety reasons, the tour is not recommended for children under 10 years of age.

For further information, including cancellation due to bad weather, telephone the Point Sur State Historic Park, 625-4419, after 8:15 a.m. on Sundays.

Kayak Elkhorn Slough

The Elkhorn Slough Foundation is offering a series of natural history excursions of the Elkhorn Slough by kayak. These naturalist-led tours include instruction, safety gear, boats, and an in-depth look at various aspects of slough ecology.

Cost to members of the Elkhorn Slough Foundation is $45. Non-member fee is $55. Trips are scheduled Feb. 17 and 19, April 7, 11 and 21.

For more information or reservations, contact the Elkhorn Slough Foundation, P.O. Box 267, Moss Landing, CA 95039, or call 728-5939.

Big Sur Pine Ridge Trail closed

Hikers of the Big Sur will find the trailhead to one of their favorite trails closed this year. The Pine Ridge Trailhead will remain closed approximately three years during construction work on a new headquarters building for state parks, the U.S. Forest Service, and the California Department of Transportation.

The trailhead closure has resulted in attempts by many hikers to access the trail through the campground of Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. This access route is prohibited because it is disruptive to campers.

Information on alternative routes is available from the Big Sur State Parks District Office, 667-2316, and from the Monterey Ranger District Office of the U.S. Forest Service, 385-5434.

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month.

For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Volunteer gardeners sought

The City of Monterey Parks Division is in need of volunteer gardeners to work in city parks. The volunteers are led by Sandra Forman and meet 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays at the French Consulate historic adobe, Franklin Street and Camino El Estero, Monterey. Bring your energy. Tools and materials will be provided. For details, call 646-3860.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffalos." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Weaving workshop set in PG

A weaving workshop sponsored by the Carmel Craft Guild will be offered free of charge on Wednesday, Feb. 21.

The class will meet 10 a.m. to noon in the conference room of the Pacific Grove Public Library.

This hands-on class will explore color and weave effect. For registration information, call 375-2942, evenings.

house last Friday and Saturday.

And speaking of live music, The Choir, formerly Boys Choir, will be playing the aforementioned Doc Ricketts Sunday and Monday, Feb. 11-12. According to drummer Greg Goebelt, the former Battle of the Bands winners are hard at work on their new album Hymns from the Savage Garden (on Sonic Design out of Soquel), which should be released in early April.

The band (in addition to Goebelt, Robert Day on guitar, Roger Rogers on bass, and Steve Cory on keyboards), has been getting feelers from major record companies, including Rounder and Rough Trade, as well as inquiries from Europe and Canada. A tour of the Soviet Union has been put on hold for now, so the boys are playing local venues.

A cutting-edge, melodic and inventive quartet, The Choir may have to change its name for a second time since it seems a Christian rock band has the same moniker. Names being kicked around include Das Khor or Das Choir, giving the band a harder-edged name to go with its sound. ("We dropped the 'Boys' from Boys Choir because it sounded too wimpy," says Goebelt.)

Cooper-Molera visitor center opens

The Monterey State Historic Park, Cooper-Molera Visitor Center, located on the corner of Polk and Munras in Monterey, is now open daily except Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Visitor Center contains displays on the history of Monterey and the Cooper family members who had an impact on early California history.

Seniors receive free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible.

Appointments are required for the screenings, which are offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church; in Pacific Grove at the community center, 515 Junipero and at the Sally Judd Griffin Senior Center, 700 Jewell Ave., in New Monterey at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center.

To schedule an appointment, call 899-8100.
